

THERE ARE NO ATHEISTS IN UKRAINE NOW

Bombs are falling, but people are seeing miracles and Bibles
are selling out

"Pray for Ukraine": demonstrators protested outside Downing Street on 25 February, the day after Russia's invasion began

"There are no atheists left in Ukraine now", one pastor told a UK Zoom meeting.

"Churches are packed to capacity and people are weeping and seeking God as never before."

As a result, miracles have been happening which the mainstream media ignores.

A missionary who fled Ukraine has described how the people believe God has been helping them in their fight.

Sharyn Borodina, who lived in Ukraine for 20 years and worked with her husband for Youth With a Mission, reported: "We're hearing time and time again that the Ukrainian army is saying, 'We recognise that there's no reason that we are able to hold back the enemy forces'."

"They know that God is helping them; they're seeing miracle after miracle; bombs dropping that don't explode, Russian tanks that run out of gas for no reason, Russian soldiers who are putting down their weapons and giving themselves up as POWs because they're not passionate about this conflict", she told Premier News.

Sharyn and her daughters fled to Poland and then back to her home in the USA – but her husband has stayed behind to continue helping the people of Ukraine.

Ukrainians turn to the Bible

Bible sales have shot up in the Ukraine since Putin's war started. According to Faithwire, at least one Christian shop has totally run out of Bibles. Robert L Briggs, president of American Bible Society, writes... "priests and pastors over the past weeks have been flocking to the Bible Society store in Kyiv to buy Bibles... We need more Bibles."

Evangelist David Hathaway's ministry confirmed the hunger for Bibles: "As a result of the war, people are buying up all the Bibles in Ukraine and they urgently request more. We work with the Ukrainian Bible Society and will be printing more."

It is also reported that Christians and Jews in the country have come together to pray Psalm 31.

Putin quotes Bible to justify invasion

President Vladimir Putin has quoted the Bible to justify the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Putin has said his so-called "military operation" in Ukraine was to "liberate people from their suffering" and "demilitarise and denazify" the country. He was referring to the under-reported atrocities of the Neo-Nazi Azov Brigade in the Donbass region since 2014, which has endured repeated shelling by Ukrainian forces. According to reports by independent broadcaster UK Column, the British Army has been training far-right troops in Ukraine.

But the Russian president has been accused of twisting Scripture to justify his invasion of Ukraine after he paraphrased the words of Jesus from John 15:13. At his Moscow rally to commemorate the eighth anniversary of his annexation of Crimea on 18 March, President Putin declared:

"To liberate people from the genocide is the main inspiring motive of the military operation we started in Donbass and in Ukraine, this is the objective, this the aim and, you know, I remember these words from the Bible, there's no other love other than if someone gives their soul for their friends."

Putin has stated several times that his wish is for Russia and Ukraine (together with Belarus and other Eastern European states) to form a single 'Russian world' with a common language (Russian), political centre (Moscow), spiritual centre (Kyiv), church administration (the Russian Orthodox Church), all united under one leader (Putin).

This appalled Eastern Orthodox Christian scholars from around the world, who have supported a statement to express their horror at the suffering in Ukraine and the weaponisation of Christianity in Russia.

Russians seize pastor in Mariupol

Army "has a blacklist of pastors"

Fears for religious freedom in Russian-controlled areas of Ukraine have heightened with the kidnap of a Ukrainian pastor by Russian soldiers in the city of Mariupol.

The charity Release International believes that Alexander Glushko, pastor of the Mariupol Evangelical Church 'Light of the World', was taken in mid-March because Protestant churches oppose Putin and the invasion. Another pastor has gone into hiding after a narrow escape, but his church building, where the pastor's family also lived, has been confiscated. The Russian army is thought to have a blacklist of pastors to detain.

Andrew Boyd of Release International says pastors are targets because they are seen to be patriots and leaders of communities. In areas such as Luhansk – which came under Russian control in 2014 – the authorities have closed most Protestant churches and have banned Christian books, including booklets of the Gospel of John and works by Spurgeon and Billy Graham.

Boyd warns that religious freedom would be severely restricted if the Kremlin controls Ukraine – as only the Russian Orthodox Church is favoured by Putin.

The authorities have closed most Protestant churches

He added: "If you're a Christian leader, your first authority or first responsibility is to God. It puts Christ above the king, above the Emperor, above leaders. So we've got evangelical and Protestant churches who are declaring that Jesus Christ is Lord who are not part of the Orthodox system, which is very much hand in glove with Vladimir Putin and the Kremlin."

"Pavel", Release International's partner in the Ukrainian capital Kyiv, said: "The entire territory of Ukraine is under fire. There is no safe place and the goal has been to sow panic everywhere. Our hope is in the Lord."

The declaration, which has been organised by Dr Brandon Gallaher from the University of Exeter and Dr Pantelis Kalaitzidis, from Volos Academy, is now available in over 10 languages.

Dr Brandon Gallaher told Premier: "The religious ideology is so wicked, [with] some sort of pretence that invading another country is an act of love."

He added: "It distorts the Gospel, it... makes it into something which is an absolute contradiction of love, which demands that you serve not only the brother, but the enemy, the one who disagrees with you. Christians are called to be peacemakers, not warmongers, to stand up for justice and to condemn injustice."

“God was at work” Lives were changed after music missionaries Vinesong came to Bexhill

Testimonies from a recent evangelistic weekend have encouraged the team of local Christians behind Jesus loves Bexhill, a grassroots initiative in East Sussex.

Organiser Geoff Tompkins reported: “God was at work and there were many who responded to him as a result. There was great excitement, too, with some saying that nothing like this had taken place locally before.”

Rachael of Vinesong performing in Bexhill

For the first time, international Christian music missionaries Vinesong (of ‘Let Your Living Water Flow Over My Soul’ fame) performed in Bexhill, both at a dinner for up to 100 guests and at two local churches, Sidley Freedom Church and St John’s Baptist Church, who gave their meetings over to Vinesong.

Geoff told HEART: “At the dinner, six hands went up to

Vinesong performing at the dinner sponsored by the Jesus loves Bexhill group accept Jesus as their Lord and Saviour, and many responded for prayer at the Sunday morning service. Someone who joined Sidley Freedom Church’s service on-line had a powerful experience of the Holy Spirit.

She said she felt as if she was being hugged and experienced a sense of peace, that she had never previously experienced.”

The Jesus loves Bexhill team was formed in 2021 as a litter-picking group: “This gave us many opportunities to witness to people and share testimonies”, says Geoff, who has invited Vinesong back for an open-air concert in August. If you would like to start a similar initiative, email Geoff at info@1066.org.uk Supporters of Christian Friends of Israel and the Zionist Federation gathered in London on Wednesday 9 March to lobby Members of Parliament about proscribing the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, following similar government action against Hamas and Hezbollah. Robin Lane of CFI reported: “We were well briefed in the morning by Wasif Wasif, an Associate Research Fellow with the Henry Jackson Society. Supporters were keen to bring this important matter to their MPs as it affects education and is essential for the protection of children and students against radicalisation.”

Rev Paul and Wendy Young are celebrating 25 years of their charity for the homeless.

Since 1997 they have raised £9million to support tens of thousands of rough sleepers, thousands of vulnerable women and more than 100,000 schoolchildren in Brighton and Hove.

Paul says: “In my early 20s I worked on a mission ship with Operation Mobilisation, giving out relief in some of the world’s poorest areas.

“However, I always believed there were parts of my home town which equally needed my help.”

At a council meeting for local aid agencies they were challenged to “get off the fence and do something about the deep needs of our city”.

Thus after a year’s research, he and Wendy founded Off the Fence to tackle both the causes and effects of poverty and homelessness. “Twenty-five years later, we’re still here, thanks to God’s grace”, says Paul.

IS RUSSIA IN BIBLE PROPHECY?

Over 2,500 years ago, the prophet Ezekiel foresaw a northern nation allying herself with Muslim nations and ultimately invading Israel. Keith Malcomson believes this northern aggressor is Russia and the Ukraine conflict is another step in the fulfilment of prophecy

By Keith Malcomson

Writing between 593 and 565 BC, the prophet Ezekiel foresaw an invasion of Israel that would take place after Israel has been restored as a nation and is in her ancient land, with her people regathered from all nations of the earth (Ezekiel 35-37).

We know this unique return has only happened once in Israel's entire 4,000 year history – in 1948.

What has not yet happened is the sudden invasion of Israel by a great northern power in confederacy with several specifically named nations.

Ezekiel shows that Gog is to be a great leader and Magog is his land or region (Ezekiel 38-39).

But who is this leader and where is this land?

Many have traditionally considered that these verses speak of Russia to the far north of Israel. More recently, however, there has been a strong swing away from this idea to teach that Gog and Magog are situated within the Middle Eastern region, and that it will be a Muslim nation – Turkey is often named.

Now I want to give you four reasons from the Bible why I believe it will, in fact, be Russia.

1. Ancient Magog is present day Russia

The first mention of Magog is in Genesis 10:2: "The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras."

From this we see that Magog was the grandson of Noah and the second son of Japheth. He was a noted person and leader who gave birth to one of the

Ezekiel 38:1-3: "And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him, And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal" earth's main peoples and nations.

If we can identify the nation called Magog, then we can discover which nation will be prominent in this invasion of Israel in the last days

This people later settled a region in Ezekiel's day which was called Magog. If we can identify the nation called Magog, then we can discover which nation will be prominent in this invasion of Israel in the last days.

Josephus, the Jewish historian who lived during the first century, wrote that, "Magog founded the Magogians, thus named after him, but who were by the Greeks called Scythians."

So who were these Scythians, where did they live and what sort of a people were they?

Their heartland was just north of the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea; that is present day Ukraine and Russia

Greek writers from the seventh to the third centuries BC frequently spoke about the Scythians. They were a large confederation of different tribes known for their mastery of the horse, constantly on the move as nomads, with great skill in warfare. They had the same culture, clothes, dialect, weapons, lifestyle, horse gear, and they tattooed their bodies. Their heartland was just north of the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea; that is present day Ukraine and Russia.

These vast hoards constantly traversed the Steppes of Russia, along a corridor of land stretching about 5,000 miles, from modern-day Ukraine in the west to Mongolia in the east. Included in this region is Siberia, which has around ten per cent of the world's landmass.

From this region they frequently fought, invaded, and traded to the south with the Greeks, those of Asia Minor (Turkey), Armenia, Assyria, and even China. They even fought against and beat King Darius of Persia. They had no written language so did not leave us a written history, but these other nations wrote about them.

They dominated this entire region from around 900 BC to 200 BC and it was right in the midst of this time that Ezekiel prophesied about them. No country or land can be identified as Ezekiel's Magog other than present-day Russia.

Christians must love Russians just as much as we love Ukrainians

The Scythians were still recognised as a nation in the time of the New Testament apostles. Paul writes to the Colossians: "Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all" (Colossians 3:11).

It is interesting that Russia is therefore mentioned in a passage where Paul emphasises that the new man in Christ is marked by love and makes no distinction between nations and their people. This tells us that Christians must love Russians just as much as we love Ukrainians.

2. Magog comes from the extreme north

The north is mentioned three times in this prophecy:

Ezekiel 38:6: "...the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee",

38:15: "And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army"

39:2:39 "And I will turn thee back, and leave but the sixth part of thee, and will cause thee to come up from the north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel."

'Quarters' and 'parts' are key words here; both literally mean the very uttermost part, the far north, or the furthest coast.

In ancient culture and in the Bible, the region to the far north of the Mediterranean is referred to as the "dark and gloomy" region

The word "north" itself used here in the Hebrew means, "the dark or gloomy region". You would not describe the Mediterranean or Middle Eastern countries as "dark" or "gloomy"! In ancient culture and in the Bible, the region to the far north of the Mediterranean is referred to as the “dark and gloomy” region.

Of the various nations mentioned along with Magog in connection with this invasion of Israel, only one is mentioned as being in the north. This is Togarmah, which I believe to be Armenia, not Georgia as some believe. (Please email the HEART office if you would like to be sent my explanation).

All the rest, such as Libya, Persia, and Ethiopia, are further south. While Togarmah is placed as the most northern of these other nations, Magog is described as being to the extreme north.

We are left with no doubt that this army which will invade Israel comes from the far, dark, gloomy and most northerly region of the earth in relation to Israel. That can only describe Russia.

3. Russian Jewish migration

Some 500 years before Christ, Jeremiah and Ezekiel both prophesied that Israel would be scattered among all nations and then regathered to her own land (Ezekiel 34:13, 36:24, 39:27).

But Jeremiah went further, explicitly describing one of the lands from which the Jews would return: “Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth...a great company shall return thither” (Jeremiah 31:8).

He goes even further, saying that a day will come when they will no longer speak of the LORD who brought them up out of Egypt but of the LORD who brought them, “...out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land” (Jeremiah 23:7-8).

There’s a good argument that this ‘north country’ refers to Russia. In just one decade after communism fell, between 1989 and 1999, at least 800,000 Jewish immigrants arrived from Russia to Israel to seek citizenship. Prior to 1989, there were more Jewish people in Russia than in any other country in the world. Since 2000 it has been noted that 20% of Israel’s citizen population were born in Russia and still speak Russian in their Israeli homes.

4. Magog allies with contemporary nations

Ezekiel 38:3: “And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal...”

38:5: “Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them...”

38:6: “Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee.”

Each of these nations now has a military force which was partially or significantly armed by Russia. All but one of these nations is Muslim; all but one is very against Israel and all but one is aligned with Russia in a union of some sort.

This was not always true; it is a recent phenomenon which shows the accuracy of Bible prophecy.

In Ezekiel chapters 38 and 39, Gog is mentioned nine times. It is clear from these references that Gog is not only a man, but the leader of this mass military attack upon Israel. We see that God is against Gog and calls upon Ezekiel to prophesy against him.

Gog is the supreme political or military commander

There will be a specific person who will fulfil this prophecy. Gog is not his name, but rather a title or an explanation of his role in this invasion.

Three times he is spoken of as “Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal” (38:2, 3; 39:1)

Those who have taught correctly that Magog is Russia have often gone on to wrongly teach that Meshech was Russia’s capital, Moscow, and that Tubal was Tobolsk, a province in Russia. They have even gone further by saying that the word “chief”, which is ‘rosh’ in Hebrew, is translated wrongly in our English Bible and should in fact be translated as a country name rather than as a title for a leader.

By this means they argue that Gog is the leader of ‘Rosh’, or of Russia. However, the Hebrew word ‘rosh’ is used almost 600 times in the Old Testament and is never once used of a person, nation or land. The word actually means, ‘top, beginning, or chief; the source, the head, or the leader; the chief prince’. The word ‘prince’ means ‘exalted one’, king, or leader.

So this joint term, “chief prince”, would seem to mean that Gog is actually the supreme political or military commander of Meshech and Tubal in this military action. Gog will lead their entire confederate military force to invade Israel.

I believe Meshech and Tubal actually refer to Turkey. Meshech comes from the name of an ancient people group in Ezekiel’s day, called Mushki (Moschi) who dwelt in central Turkey in the region of Phrygia. Tubal comes from peoples called the Tubali (Tibareni) who lived in an area in the east of Turkey in the region of Pontus.

Both of them in the Bible and in ancient records are always mentioned together. Ezekiel 38:6 also mentions “Gomer, and all his bands”. Again, Gomer was found in Turkey in Ezekiel’s day.

Because we are given three ancient nations who made their home in the one contemporary nation of Turkey, we must be aware that this is a very important nation in this future war. A Russian leader will lead this Turkish and allied force. Note that Turkey currently has one of the ten biggest armies in the world and has one of the three largest tank forces in the world.

Recent events lend support to this idea. Until 2002, Turkey was a very mild and moderate nation and most of us took no notice of it, let alone considered the role it would play in fulfilling Bible prophecy. Yet its current president, Erdogan, spent five months in prison for having radical, extremist Muslim views. Then in 2002 there was a revolution and Erdogan took power as President and made Turkey a radical Muslim nation.

In 2016 the CIA went into Turkey to attempt to overthrow the government, but Russia warned Turkey and the CIA’s efforts failed. This pushed Turkey towards aligning with Russia more.

When Ezekiel goes further to describe “all” of Gog’s “army” in verse 5, he begins with Persia, which we know to be present-day Iran. Persia bore the same name from the time of ancient history right through until 1935, when it was renamed Iran; its people still speak Persian. Iran used to be a mild, friendly and non-combative nation until the CIA went in, started a revolution in 1978, and it became a radical Muslim nation.

Therefore, I believe the first three nations mentioned in Ezekiel 38:3-6 are Russia, Turkey and Iran. It is only since 2016 that they have been joined in regular summits to discuss and work together in reference to the crisis in Syria by co-ordinating the activities of their military forces on the ground in the Middle East just north of Israel. This is the first time in history we see this. Their last joint, trilateral summit was held in December 2021.

Since 1948 Russia has been supporting Muslim conflicts against Israel

The other three nations distinctly named here are Ethiopia or ‘Kush’ which was situated on the southern border of Egypt (Ezekiel 29:9-10), which is present-day Sudan. Then Libya, or ‘Phut’, which Russia, Turkey and Iran are planning to make a second Syria. It may include Algeria, or even Morocco and Tunisia.

Since 1948 Russia has been supporting the various Muslim conflicts against Israel, by arming them, providing military vehicles, protecting from western powers, and intervening politically when needed. To date they have never led an armed attack upon Israel, but I believe the present conflict between Ukraine and Russia is only aligning this entire scenario further in preparing for the final fulfilment of Ezekiel’s prophecy.

All Bible quotations are from the King James version.

There are differing views on Bible prophecy and the role of the CIA in past events. Another helpful source of information on end-time prophecy is the quarterly bulletin, ‘Light for the Last Days’ by Tony Pearce which is available from www.lightforthelastdays.co.uk

PASTOR PROPHESED UKRAINE WAR 13 YEARS AGO

Premier Radio's Gospel Breakfast Show on 1 March revealed that Prophet Austin Moses in 2009 said that God had told him that "Ukraine must prepare for war and repent for their sin" and that the country Ukraine would be fighting was Russia.

Few people took notice of Moses because Ukraine was a peaceful country at the time.

Lifesite News has also published a document showing atrocities committed by Neo-Nazi Ukrainian forces on civilians in the separatist Donbass region, which has (whether voluntarily or not) pledged allegiance to Russia. Here 14,000 are said to have died since 2014, and the speaking of Russian outlawed.

"IT'S NOT THE GOG AND MAGOG BATTLE"

Pastor Chris Wickland, one of HEART's Partner Pastors (Living Word Network – see back page) received a prophetic message in 18 September 2019: "War is coming and it's time to be prepared and not be troubled by this. I need to warn my people that this is not the battle of Gog and Magog. Many will claim it is, but it is not. Take comfort in this". "ANOTHER GLOBALIST DECEPTION"

"This is a globalist plan to weaken Russia and impose a Western globalist government, which Christians believe will be led by the Antichrist during the Tribulation period of seven years."

So writes Andrew Baguley, author of 'The Covid Tyanny', in a chapter of his next book

He writes: "The war in Syria has now been going on for ten years and the number of people killed is believed to be 610,000. Why, asks Vernon Coleman, aren't our town halls flying flags in support of the people of Yemen and Syria instead of just Ukraine flags? ... The invasion of Ukraine was organised and manipulated to help push the energy and food shortages required for the Great Reset and the New World Order and the famine that God has told us will happen at the beginning of the Tribulation period (Revelation 6:5-6)."

Quoting David Scott of UK Column News on 21 March, Rev Baguley writes: "The West's 'great game' ... was to trigger conflict and re-armament, overthrow Putin, bring about changes in Europe and further

Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano

Catholic Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano, who has been warning about the globalists' plans since the Covid outbreak, has appealed for people to come together to stand against the "coup d'etat that has taken over our governments and media".

Graham Bridger, whose article 'Reshaping the future' about global finance appeared in HEART's Feb/Mar issue, says: "As Archbishop Vigano states, this totally unelected group have mobilised their 'partners' including many world leaders, "installed" into governments by Klaus Schwab of the World Economic Forum who has himself boasted that they have 'infiltrated' cabinets. These 'partners' include royalty, and over 1,000 of the worlds largest mega-corporations, together with people from academia who all believe in the idea that the world's entire population must be controlled – for the good of humanity. It is being done as we speak with the complete digitisation of the world that will empower technocrats."

and Jacinda Ardern (New Zealand).

Bridger adds: "We are being warned that world economies, which were purposely shut down over two years, face real hardship with massive inflation, food shortages, global commodity crises and the installation of digital currencies to replace the current world monetary system that will introduce measures of control never known before in the Western world."

Vigano "understands only too well what is happening in the world and why it is happening. But will the public wake up sufficiently to understand that the prophetic Scriptures in the Bible are now coming to pass and that we are walking into the New World Order prophesied in 2 Thessalonians chapter 2 and Revelation 13? The Antichrist spirit is now running rampant throughout the world and as these Scriptures say, it will lead to the rise of the Antichrist himself."

"GOD ALLOWS EVIL PEOPLE TO FULFIL HIS PURPOSES"

Malcolm Hedding, former head of the International Christian Embassy, Jerusalem, told a meeting on 11 March: "God's not on holiday – he'll allow evil people to fulfil his purposes, then he'll judge them in a terrifying way and bring them down."

Using the history of Israel – her conquest by Babylonian King Nebuchadnezzar and subsequent exile after she ignored the prophets' warnings – Rev Hedding said: "God says that Nebuchadnezzar is his servant and that he will bring him against a land which deserves judgement – this is something that most Christians can't understand. Even (the prophet) Habakkuk says to God: 'You can't do that!' But there comes a time when the wickedness of man overflows and God has no choice."

Ukraine is said to have a high rate of sex trafficking and has also housed bio-labs funded by the US (UK Column has shown a map of these, along with official documents), which would have caused concern to the Russians. Videos of President Zelensky's obscene comedy antics in his previous career have also been circulating.

However, Rev Hedding said he did not know what had happened in Ukraine that finally moved God to act: "It's not for me to ask, as we deserve similar treatment. God's also got his eye on the Church – is it holy?"

"We deserve similar treatment"

He said that God uses judgement as a means to reach out to the ungodly so that they repent and are saved. He quoted a Christian leader who said in early March: "There are no atheists in Ukraine now. Churches are packed to capacity – they're weeping and seeking God as never before". (See article on page 1).

In this situation Christians should still be fervently praying: "We must take a stand against evil and pray Putin will be brought down, just as Hitler was. It's not for us to sit on the fence: can you imagine if we'd done that in World War 2 and not prayed for the deliverance of the British Army from Dunkirk?"

This meeting on 11 March 2022 can be viewed at dovetailshalom.co.uk

PUTIN AND THE OCCULT

Russian speaker Tania Mitskevich

President Putin consulted a shaman before embarking on his "special military operation" in Ukraine.

Belarusian-born Tania Mitskevich, says: "According to Russian, Ukrainian, and Belarusian political analysts, historians, and former Putin friends, it is impossible to explain Putin's decision to start the war logically and rationally. Even those who don't believe in the spiritual world said that he is mentally ill and lives in his own world, far away from reality."

In a powerful article, Mrs Mitskevich reports Putin as saying: "Why do we need a world without Russia?" and, in the case of nuclear aggression: "We [Russians] will go to heaven, but they [aggressors] will die, because they won't have time to repent".

Who regulates the regulator?

Young people in the Covid-19 vaccine trials had some alarming reactions which have never been reported in the mainstream press. Jonathan Weissman has spent the last year investigating the safety, efficacy and strategic viability of the Covid-19 vaccines which he describes as “experimental genetic drugs.” He has recently supported a legal challenge against treating children in Northern Ireland with these novel vaccines. Now he has concluded that he has been dealing with “a rogue industry and regulators too passive to intervene”

Do you remember the fanfare and excitement in late 2020 that greeted the new vaccines, capable of instructing our cells to produce a protein found on the surface of the novel coronavirus SARS-CoV-2?

Propelled by President Trump's Operation Warp Speed, these vaccines were praised for being cutting edge: a feat of human ingenuity. But with innovation in drug development should also come caution, cool heads and careful analysis.

As a cybersecurity professional, I am used to identifying risks and so for the past year, I've simply reapplied the same kind of scrutiny to the Covid-19 vaccines.

In support of a recent legal challenge, I studied Pfizer's clinical trial data for adolescents aged 12 to 15. Only 1131 adolescents were exposed to the vaccine during the blinded study, where participants were "blind" to knowing if they received the actual vaccine or a saline placebo. Prior to the data cut-off date of 13 March 2021, a further 49 youngsters from the placebo group turned 16 and received the vaccine during the open-label study.

The trial report confirms there were no cases of severe Covid-19 disease, thus providing no direct evidence that the vaccine prevents adolescents from being hospitalised with Covid-19. The study also did not prove that viral transmission was reduced. However, the small treatment group of just 1180 youngsters suffered some very significant adverse events within 15 days of a vaccine dose:

- a related life-threatening fever of 40.4C that took two days to resolve
- a related life-threatening anaphylaxis reaction
- a related with “reasonable possibility” myopericarditis (heart inflammation) hospitalised a boy, advised by a cardiologist after two months to conduct only “limited activity”
- Four hospitalisations for depression, including one of life-threatening severity
- a catastrophic cascade of injuries in one girl who still suffers life-changing injuries, mislabelled “as gradually

Wheelchair-bound Maddie de Gary during an interview with Epoch Times (27 January 2022) with her mother, Stephanie. Maddie is now 13 and was 12 on 20 January 2021 when she had her second Pfizer dose and severe reaction

improving” by the European medical regulator, the EMA

Maddie de Garay is the girl whose injuries are so devastatingly severe, she has spoken out. After immediately suffering pain at the injection site, she then suffered extreme chest and abdominal pain and numbness within the first day. Her sorrowful mother, Stephanie de Garay, testified to Senator Ron Johnson at the Senate hearing into vaccine damage.

Maddie's condition significantly deteriorated; now wheelchair-bound, she can now only eat liquid food through a nasogastric tube. However, little more than two weeks after the data cut-off date, on 31 March 2021, Pfizer's press briefing on their adolescent trial announced "positive topline results" and boasted their treatment was "well-tolerated".

It was the critical job of the UK's medical regulator, the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Authority (MHRA), to keep the manufacturers in check by only ever approving safe and effective medicines. If the regulator fails in their duty, it is then up to ordinary doctors, scientists and citizen researchers to speak up in warning.

The MHRA cited a World Health Organisation vaccine report from as far back as 2005 to justify skipping safety studies on chemical toxicity, cancer and genetic damage to cells

The MHRA has provided their justification to temporarily authorise the Covid-19 vaccines in public assessment reports (PARs). In their rush to rubber stamp these vaccines, the MHRA acted brazenly. In Pfizer's PAR, the MHRA cited a World Health Organisation vaccine report from as far back as 2005 to justify skipping safety studies on chemical toxicity, cancer and genetic damage to cells. The Covid-19 vaccines on the table since 2020 are nothing like those deployed in 2005. Safety risks were undoubtedly taken to avoid slowing down the approval process.

We are being asked to trust a regulator who still will not sound the alarm, despite 2000 deaths already recorded in their Yellow Card Scheme as “suspected side effects”

The goal of the pharmaceutical industry is to develop medical products that prove some type of benefit in their clinical trials, so they can ultimately sell them to as many of us as possible. Like any major business, they have shareholders to please.

In February 2021, the Japanese medical regulator (PDMA) released a Pfizer study showing how widely the vaccine distrib-

Dr John Campbell, host of a podcast with a regular audience of over 200,000 viewers about Covid-19, was shocked at the adverse reaction information released by Pfizer after a US judge had to force their co-operation with a Freedom of Information request by a team of doctors

Pfizer's raw ingredients table [3.2.P.1-1], released for Jonathan Weissman's freedom of information request, is heavily redacted uted across the bodies of rats. Within 48 hours, 16% of the vaccine concentrated in the liver, 1% in the spleen and up to 0.1% in both the ovaries and heart.

Name of Ingredients	Reference to Standard	Function	Concentration (mg/mL)	Amount per vial	Amount per dose

In the real-world rollout, this might explain serious adverse events observed in different organs. In tissues far from the injection site, cells may express the spike protein inducing antibody, inflammatory and cytotoxic immune responses.

Recent peer-reviewed research also proves that, under transmission electron microscopy, the spike protein produced by the vaccine circulates in the bloodstream for months following injection. The spike protein is strongly suspected to cause the blood clots sometimes observed in severe Covid-19 cases.

The precise composition of all the vaccines is a trade secret. Despite this fact, the MHRA has tried to reassure the public that all the ingredients are known by citing a legal duty the pharmaceuticals have to disclose the ingredients in a document filed with the MHRA, the SmPC.

explaining that some of these ingredients are anything but pure, containing residual impurities from complex manufacturing processes. Pfizer's novel lipids, ALC-0159 and ALC-0315, have never been included in any licensed drug before and have undisclosed quality control standards.

This is truly the “black-box” approach to drug safety. We are being asked to trust a regulator who still will not sound the alarm, despite 2000 deaths already recorded in their Yellow Card Scheme as “suspected side effects” from the Covid-19 vaccines.

Jonathan Weissman is a cybersecurity professional and part-time independent researcher in biosecurity, operational research and theology. He has written a fully independent biosecurity risk assessment on #AllTheRisks of the experimental genetic vaccination campaign across toxicology, molecular biology, virology, immunology and epidemiology, which he hosts at alltherisks.com. It includes 211 academic-style references.

'Sex is immutable' says MP

CONSERVATIVE MP MIRIAM CATES HAS DEFENDED THE REALITY OF BIOLOGICAL SEX.

The Christian Institute reports that, in a debate on a petition demanding that the government make changing legal sex easier, the former science teacher stated: "Human beings, like all other mammals, cannot change sex. At the moment of conception... apart from rare abnormalities, there are two possible outcomes. "Sex is immutable, however much an individual may want to change their sex through surgery, hormone treatment or by changing their lifestyle."

Cates, who spoke strongly against further Covid restrictions in Parliament last December, has previously argued that the denial of biological sex poses a serious risk to women's rights and women's safety.

Taking a stand: MP Miriam Cates risks the wrath of the transgender lobby

GP takes transgender case to High Court

A Christian doctor fired for not using transgender pronouns was about to fight for his views in the High Court as we went to press.

Dr David Mackereth, a disability assessor, was dismissed by the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) in 2018 for refusing to call a transgender woman 'she', due to his belief that gender is determined at birth.

He says those who oppose transgender ideology are being "coerced and threatened."

In 2019, David claimed discrimination against his Christian faith at an Employment Tribunal. But the panel judged that his traditional view of gender is "incompatible with human dignity".

Andrea Williams, head of the Christian Legal Centre which is supporting Dr Mackereth, says that if the Tribunal's view is not overturned, it "will have seismic consequences" for anyone "who is prepared to believe and say that we are created male and female".

Meanwhile, former Prime Minister Tony Blair told The Times that ordinary people "don't like" the transgender ideology being "shoved" at them. He said the Labour Party must come down on the side of women, adding that voters in his former constituency "would think you were bonkers" if you told them not to say "pregnant woman".

Dr David Mackereth says "we're being told to practise a lie" about gender changes

UNIVERSITY SLAPS WARNING ON BIBLE

Newman University in Birmingham – named after a Catholic cardinal – is warning its students that the Bible "includes themes of sexual violence and abuse".

The report in the Daily Mail gave the example of King David's affair with Bathsheba, now marked 'SV' to denote sexual violence. Students are also warned about domestic abuse in St Augustine's Confessions.

One online commentator opined that these warnings could turn the Bible into a "very good book" and a 'must read' for curious youngsters.

Former Anglican bishop Dr Michael Nazir-Ali said: "University should be a time when students are exposed to different aspects of the human condition... My issue with warnings is how far do you go before you end up with some form of censorship?"

GMC VINDICATES ABORTION REVERSAL DOC

Christian Legal Centre

Dr Dermot Kearney with three babies he has helped to save through abortion reversal treatment

The General Medical Council (GMC) has lifted its ban on a doctor offering abortion reversals after dismissing every allegation against him.

Christian NHS consultant Dr Dermot Kearney had been blocked from providing Abortion Pill Reversal treatment in May 2021 by an Interim Orders Tribunal. A spurious complaint had been made against him by a pro-abortion doctor, Jonathan Lord, whose objections were described by the GMC as “hearsay”.

Dr Kearney was supported by the Christian Legal Centre, which was due to take the case to the High Court. The CLC’s chief executive, Andrea Williams, said: “The abortion lobby’s mantra of ‘My body, my choice’ should extend to a women changing her mind about going through with an abortion. The abortion industry does not want to give women that choice...”

“Many women feel unbelievably grateful to Dr Kearney for helping them to save their babies.”

According to Christian Concern, Dr Lord “has also been accused by a woman who had faced a crisis pregnancy of pressurising and ‘scaring’ her into giving evidence against Dr Kearney”.

Abortion reversal treatment is safe

Christian Concern’s press release continued: “Caseworkers for the GMC dismissed every allegation against Dr Dermot Kearney and concluded that there is no case to answer. They found that the women he had supported had received high-level support and, following expert evidence, that abortion reversal treatment is safe.”

Abortion providers had claimed, without any credible evidence, that Dr Kearney’s treatment was dangerous.

Dr Kearney said: “I have been the victim of a co-ordinated campaign by senior figures in the abortion industry who have been determined to prevent women in urgent need from accessing abortion reversal treatment.”

DIY abortion still not over

Earlier this year the government announced that the dangerous pills-by-post abortion scheme would end in England in August, but in March the House of Lords voted to make such chemical abortions permanent.

Their amendment to the Health and Care Bill was due to be voted on in the House of Commons as we went to press.

70 per cent wanted an immediate end to home abortions

The Lords’ vote ignored the fact that the majority of the public does not support ‘DIY’ abortions. A government consultation on the issue found that 70 per cent of respondents wanted an immediate end to home abortions and only 22 per cent were in favour of the policy continuing.

Over 600 medical professionals had demanded that the ser-

Baroness Sugg, who drafted an amendment to the Health and Care Bill to make DIY abortion permanent vice should be abandoned. An undercover investigation found that abortion providers were not carrying out basic safety and ID checks before posting the pills, and a poll of GPs found that most were concerned that home abortions were taking place way beyond the legal limit and that more women were being coerced into abortion.

Yet Baroness Sugg argued in the Lords vote that home abortions have “created a safer and more effective service”.

Conversion therapy ban won't affect church, claims government

Elaine Hindson

This Lancashire Baptist church had its website suspended for opposing the government’s proposed conversion therapy ban

After a group of church ministers warned the Government Equalities Office (GEO) that they are willing to face jail if conversion therapy legislation bans them from teaching their faith, the government promised that religious beliefs will be protected.

However, whether this will work in practice remains to be seen.

Over 2,500 UK clergy had signed a letter to the Equalities Minister, Liz Truss (who combines this with her main role of Foreign Secretary), warning that the current proposals would outlaw beliefs on marriage and sexual ethics, and that praying for someone with unwanted same-sex attraction would be illegal.

Rev Ian Paul, a member of the Church of England’s General Synod, told Premier that while government officials said “it was not the intention of the government to outlaw mainstream Christian religious practice”, they were still determined to bring in the ban.

He continued: “Those two claims seem to us to be incompatible, and irresolvable.”

Already, some businesses and organisations are intimidating Christians.

A website hosting service, Torrix, removed the website of Stanley Road Baptist Church in Morecambe, Lancashire, because the pastor signed the anti-conversion therapy letter. Torrix’s owner, Matt Fletcher, said he cannot support anything that opposes the LGBTQ+ movement.

Other evangelicals who signed the letter have also experienced a hostile backlash. According to Christian Today, there has been a “co-ordinated and hostile” campaign by LGBT activists.

One of the co-authors of the letter, Rev Graham Nicholls, told of hostility “in the press, social media and from your church denominational leaders such as bishops and from professional bodies” which included “slandorous” accusations.

Meanwhile Core Issues Trust, the team which includes ex-gay Christians, has produced “An International Declaration on ‘Conversion Therapy’ and Therapeutic Choice” for churches and individuals to sign: <https://iftcc.org/the-declaration/>

PASTOR LOSES JOB FOR GAY PRIDE TWEET

Christian Concern

Keith Waters and the offending tweet right

A pastor has begun legal action against a school which made his work there impossible after he tweeted that Pride events are harmful to children.

Pastor Keith Waters worked as a caretaker at the Isle of Ely Primary School, Cambridgeshire, until the school told him he had brought the school into disrepute and issued a final written warning.

He resigned in 2019 after the school treated him in an “uncaring and hostile way” and made it clear that he could not express his Christian beliefs and keep his job.

He also suffered a campaign of abuse, including a funeral director being sent to his family home to “plan his funeral”.

Supported by the Christian Legal Centre, Pastor Waters is awaiting the outcome of his trial in January before a full Employment Tribunal, where his lawyers argued school interfered with his rights to freedom of religion, expression and thought.

A reminder that Christians should not support or attend LGBTQ “Pride Month” events held in June. They promote a culture and encourage activities that are contrary to Christian faith and morals. They are especially harmful for children

SCHOOLS TELL KIDS NOT TO REFER TO ‘MUM AND DAD’

Four Brighton primary schools are telling children to call their parents ‘grown ups’ rather than ‘mum and dad’.

Premier reports that the aim is to avoid discrimination against ‘non-traditional families’.

Elizabeth Harewood of the Association for Christian Teachers’ (ACT) commented that to erase the “unique roles” of a mother and father is “symptomatic of a culture that’s being increasingly taken in by certain progressive ideology”.

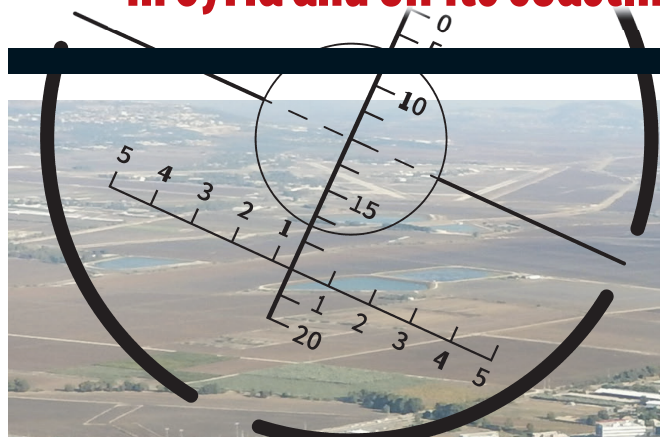

GARDNER'S WORLD

EYE OF THE STORM

As war clouds darken, keep a watch on little Israel

Reports have emerged of a massive array of Russian land, sea and air weaponry being deployed in Syria and off its coastline, ostensibly for the launching of a Russian 'naval exercise'

By Charles Gardner

The Jezreel Valley in northern Israel – site of the prophesied battle of Armageddon. The picture was taken from Mt Carmel, where Elijah challenged the false prophets to a contest; the town of Megiddo is in the foreground

There has been much speculation over whether Russia's invasion of Ukraine could be a dress rehearsal for Armageddon (Revelation 16:16).

Certainly we need to brace ourselves for the possibility of a wider conflict after millions have fled for their lives from the barrage of missiles striking Kyiv and other cities.

Russia is evidently seeking to restore the 'glory' of her former empire, but Vladimir Putin ought to know (as he claims to be an Orthodox Christian) that "the ruler of God's creation" – our Lord Jesus (Revelation 3:14) – "brings princes to naught and reduces the rulers of this world to nothing" (Isaiah 40:23). They are here today, and gone tomorrow.

The invasion of Ukraine, shocking as it is, could be something of a distraction from Russia's operations in the Middle East

The invasion of Ukraine, shocking as it is, could be something of a distraction from Russia's operations in the Middle East where, the Bible tells us, the final great battle between good and evil forces will take place.

Reports have emerged of a massive array of Russian land, sea and air weaponry being deployed in Syria and off its coastline, ostensibly for the launching of a Russian 'naval exercise' – the biggest by far since the end of the Cold War.¹

Meanwhile, Russia continues to back Syrian dictator Bashar al-Assad, who is allowing the virulently anti-Semitic Iranian military to establish a foothold in his country – which borders Israel...

In addition, Syria's army has begun recruiting its own troops to fight alongside Russian forces in Ukraine.

A toxic mix indeed. But the West has yet to take the Iranian threat seriously, continuing to soft-pedal with a rogue regime set on producing a nuclear weapon.

Indeed, our approach recalls the efforts to appease Hitler in the run-up to World War 2. How many of us are aware of the collaboration of Islamic mullahs with the Nazi leader?

What we need to seriously embrace is the reality that, for all his fierce opposition to wokery, Putin is a staunch ally of a fundamentalist Islamic state, ruled by fanatical ayatollahs who, along with persecuting Christians, have repeatedly threatened to wipe Israel off the map. (It is also worth noting, in this respect, that Ukraine is not only being led by the heroic Volodymyr Zelensky, a Jew, but also has a significant Jewish population, including Messianic believers).

Understandably, the Israeli Defence Force has launched several successful strikes on Syrian-based Iranian military targets. And while it hasn't publicly reacted, Moscow has reportedly warned Israel that further action of this kind would lead to a 'sharp escalation' of conflict in the region.

Although aware of the need to maintain their current reasonably friendly relations with Russia, Israel also knows they can't afford to allow sworn enemies to continue building up a presence on their northern border.

As for the final great battle we have been discussing, where does the Bible say it will be fought? Armageddon. Centred on the town of Megiddo, it's a vast plain in the north of Israel where many previous battles have taken place.

As already noted, the present crisis could widen into a major armed conflict. But let's remember how last century's two World Wars, involving the rise and fall of empires hungry to regain territory, were ultimately about Israel.

World War I paved the way for the return of the Jewish people to their ancient land in fulfilment of a raft of Old Testament prophecies. I have recently written of the miraculous way in which Jerusalem was taken by the Allies on 9 December 1917, signalling the collapse after 400 years of the Turkish Ottoman Empire and in the process ending "the times of the gentiles" to which Jesus referred (Luke 21:24).

The efforts of dictators to seek world domination will ultimately come to naught

World War II, which included the satanic mass slaughter of European Jews, also paved the way for the miraculous rebirth of Israel just three years after the conflict ended, fulfilling Ezekiel's prophecy of the 'valley of dry bones' (Ezekiel 37).

God is on the throne, and his ways are perfect. As my South African compatriot and Israel Today colleague Stan Goodenough put it, Israel and the Jews are as central to current events as the eye of a hurricane is to the storm.²

We need to see heaven's perspective, which is from the vantage-point of Jerusalem, the mountain of the Lord (Psalm 48:1). Jesus is coming to reign on earth, but his enemy will gather armies together in a desperate but vain attempt to stop that happening.

The efforts of dictators to seek world domination will ultimately come to naught, because it will mean contending with Jesus himself, "the ruler of God's creation", and Israel, the "apple of his eye" (Zechariah 2:8).

Put your trust in Jesus, not in the swaggering princes who boastfully strut the global stage. He's got the whole world in his hands – including you. So do not fear; the Lord is near.

ARABS DISGUSTED BY AMNESTY 'LIES'

Israeli Arabs have responded in disgust to the way Amnesty International (AI) has accused the Jewish state of practising apartheid.

Among them was Palestinian human rights activist Bassem Eid, who tweeted: "Amnesty International is lying about Israel," adding: "I'm here to set the record straight: Israel is not an apartheid state."

Even Mansour Abbas, head of an Arab party in Israel, has confirmed this, saying he would not use the word 'apartheid' to describe relations between Jews and Arabs. He is, after all, part of the governing coalition.

Eid made further reference to AI's "misinformation and lies", saying that they and other Israel-haters "can't seem to live with the fact that the world is embracing Israel with open arms. They want to continue demonising Israel and denying it the right to exist as the one and only Jewish state."

Meanwhile an AI official tweeted that it's okay to hound Israeli representatives in order to prevent them from speaking on university campuses. The tweet, by Ilyas Nagdee, was posted after a Cambridge University talk by Israeli Ambassador to Britain Tzipi Hotovely was disrupted by protesters.

Terror threat

Middle East terror groups believe America's weakened status in the world has increased the chances of fulfilling their goal of replacing Israel with an Islamic state. Article 13 of the Hamas Charter states: "There is no solution to the Palestinian problem except by Jihad (holy war)."

Cries for help

There has been a huge increase in cries for help from Jews trapped in Ukraine wishing to make Aliyah (re-settle in Israel).

Many have already been successfully airlifted to the Jewish state, which is reportedly ready to provide emergency evacuation for up to 200,000 people.

Meanwhile the Chief Rabbi of Kyiv invited Christians to join the Jewish community in declaring Psalm 31 (a hymn of protection) over the unfolding nightmare there.

And a prayer initiative originally organised by an advisor to Winston Churchill during World War II has apparently resurfaced, calling on everyone to stop what they are doing at 8pm UK time each evening to pray for God's help.

Ice cream meltdown follows Israel boycott

After Unilever's stock prices plummeted in the wake of their boycott of Israel, the Jewish state's Interior Minister Ayelet Shaked cited a Bible verse from Genesis: "I will bless those who bless you and curse those who curse you." (Genesis 12:3)

It was last summer when the company informed one of their brands, Ben & Jerry's ice cream, that it could no longer be sold in areas under 'Israeli occupation'. As a result, several American states, including New York, Illinois and Texas, withdrew investments and pension funds related to the food giant, wiping $26 billion off their stock prices. Shaked noted that anyone familiar with Scripture should not be surprised by this outcome.

JEWISH LEADER NOT JOKING ANYMORE

Ukrainian leader Volodymyr Zelensky has become an unlikely hero after refusing to budge in the face of the Russian onslaught on his country.

The 44-year-old former actor-comedian rocketed to fame in a TV series called 'Servant of the People', in which he played a lovable high school teacher fed up with corrupt politicians who accidentally becomes president. Now the 'fairy tale' has come true. And after an offer from the United States to transport him to safety, he simply replied: "I need ammunition, not a ride."

'Quake imminent

Preparations are in hand for what is expected to be a massive earthquake in Israel any time soon, and Scripture backs this up.

The prophet Zechariah said such a calamity would take place when the Messiah places his feet on the Mt of Olives (Zechariah 14:4).

JUDGE'S FORMAL APOLOGY

Former South African Chief Justice Mogoeng Mogoeng has succumbed to intense pressure by making a formal apology for supporting Israel in a webinar nearly two years ago. He said at the time: "I'm under an obligation as a Christian to love Israel... because I know hatred for Israel by me and for my nation can only attract unprecedented curses upon our nation."

• More than a dozen Dutch universities have asked their staff to reveal their ties to Israeli and Jewish organisations following pressure from a pro-Palestinian advocacy group.

• Jordanian researcher Dr Abdullah Sawalha says a growing number of today's Arabs consider the Jews to be their cousins.

Moldova's Jewish community rallies to help

Jewish community leaders in Moldova reported that there were already around 5,000 Jewish or Israeli refugees in Moldova by 1 March. David Segal, CEO of the Feed Israel Foundation, said they included a rabbi and his community from Odessa and many more were expected to arrive:

"The local Jewish community in Moldova has been working tirelessly to help the incoming flow of people who didn't have anywhere to go since the airports were not operating. These refugees need accommodation, food, water, and medicine."

The Jewish community members set up tents for newly arrived refugees. Many had spent hours or even days travelling or waiting at the border, often without food or drink, and some needed medical support

“Feed my sheep”

When Chris Wickland, pastor of Living Word Church Network, received God’s instruction to “Feed my sheep”, he responded both spiritually and literally – which resulted in a church allotment and bumper harvest

Pastor Chris holds a cabbage that’s bigger than his head

For 20 years I have been receiving dreams and visions about financial collapse.

In one, I saw a bank on Canary Wharf collapse, followed by the others.

So both I and my wife, Tracey, who also receives prophetic dreams, believed that we were to prepare for very challenging times.

We have 200 church members across four Hampshire churches, as well as five children of our own, three of whom are still at home with us, but knew we had to find the time to prepare.

Moreover, God was giving us principles to thrive (not just survive) in economic famine, which I shared at a recent conference called ‘A crash course to thrive in economic collapse’ and hope to share these in more depth in future issues of HEART.

Spiritual principles

1. Faith

We have to trust God and keep sowing (giving) spiritual seed.

Many Christians limit their personal giving according to their current financial or practical situation

One of the hindrances to receiving supernatural supply in a time of financial famine is that many Christians limit their personal giving according to their current financial or practical situation. This is walking by sight and not by faith. We cannot trust in reason or logic but must trust the Word of God and live by the leading of the Holy Spirit.

2. Avoid double-mindedness

James 1:7 is very specific; if we ask from God and doubt, then we shall receive nothing from God. I have found that an important key to remedying double-mindedness is biblical meditation.

Meditating on the Scriptures enables the Spirit of God to get the Word into your mind and your heart/spirit in one hit. This is invaluable in helping the Christian guard against the problems posed by an intellect that’s fully convinced – but where the heart is not – and vice versa.

3. Faith and works

To know the signs of the times and not act is to be a “hearer of the word and not a doer”.

An excellent example of faith borne out in works is found in Acts 11:27-30 where Agabus stood up and warned the church of a coming famine. The people responded by collecting and storing supplies from various churches to help those churches affected by the famine.

Our practical response

Firstly, we encouraged all our church members to store a minimum of one to three months’ supply of food.

This will not just be to help the individual, but also family and neighbours, in response to God’s call throughout Scripture and in Isaiah 58 to share our bread with the poor and needy.

The only way we’ll get through this is as a community. We’re stronger together and have more buying power.

The only way we’ll get through this is as a community

When the world’s props go and there’s economic collapse, people will seek answers, so Christians shouldn’t be running around in fear like headless chickens. When I received the prophecy about a time that will be known as ‘the golden age of the Church’ (published in HEART’s February/March issue), it was clear that this revival will be born out of adversity.

Secondly, we believed that God told us specifically to “Feed my sheep”, which we understood to be both spiritually and practically.

On the spiritual side, I started podcasting and YouTubeing under the name of ‘Storehouse 7 Ministries.’ I have made a 60 episode series on the book of Revelation, (currently working through chapter 14) and a lot of sessions on faith, provision and prophetic words. Our Sunday sermons are specifically geared to engender faith and an intimate knowledge of God.

On the practical side, we met with our leaders and trustees to confirm the instruction and work out how much it would cost to feed our particular flock.

As a team, we agreed to budget to feed people for three months, including the costs of storing food.

Hardly any of us had any experience in growing veg and I have always failed miserably at making things grow in my own garden

At that time, we were already hiring a field from a Christian farmer where we held our weekly church services during the Covid-19 lockdowns. When we discussed our plans with the farmer and his wife, Eric and Jean, they agreed to plough an acre of their land for the church to use as an allotment. It turned out that they had already had a vision from God that the field was to be used in this manner and were excited to see things coming to fruition!

£20,000 for 2,000 people (allowing for friends and neighbours) and another £5,000 to set up the allotment with a poly tunnel and the other kit we needed. Including stuff for this year we are looking at around £28,000, which is not bad.

We began our big allotment project in early 2021. It was a daunting task! An acre doesn't sound very much until you stand in it and realise that you have got to work this ground to make it grow vegetables from literally thousands of small seeds.

Hardly any of us had any experience in growing veg and I have always failed miserably at making things grow in my own garden. But in obedience to God's word, faith producing works, we set to sowing our seeds.

We had a church work party to build a 60 foot poly tunnel in a day to get the growing session underway. As much of the work is done during the week, we found that only around 30 could commit to helping, but 30 was plenty to work one acre.

I couldn't see how anything was possibly going to grow on our big, stony patch from these tiny, lonely seeds

We then divided our land into five sections: onions, legumes, roots, potatoes and brassicas, with one family or couple responsible for each section.

We sowed our seeds joyfully and with some trepidation. I must admit that my faith was just like the size of the mustard seeds! I couldn't see how anything was possibly going to grow on our big, stony patch from these tiny, lonely seeds!

Buckets of potatoes

But we were obedient to the prophetic word and sowed seed and prayed over the land as we planted.

We worked together, met together, prayed together, day in and day out, and God blessed our efforts with his abundant increase

Then came harvest time, and oh boy, what a harvest! We had vegetables with yields and sizes I had never seen before.

Most of our parsnips were monsters – a foot long and around 8 to 10 centimetres wide! Butternut squash, courgettes and marrows of sizes not seen in a supermarket were growing in extravagant plenty.

In fact, pretty much everything we sowed grew beautifully. We did lose a few crops to blight, but overall the field was a roaring success.

Church members working in the field

We had a little stall where people could take free vegetables or give an offering. Then 50 per cent of the money raised was given away and the other 50 per cent went back into buying more seed.

On top of that, we grew as a community. We worked together, met together, prayed together, day in and day out, and God blessed our efforts with his abundant increase.

We do believe God gave us a year of grace and a trial run as we now move into more trying financial times where those huge squashes will be a lifeline for our people.

“JESUS HEALED MY BABY GRIEF – NOW I’M HELPING OTHERS”

The “powerful” day to mourn Britain’s ‘Missing Millions’

Hundreds attended the National Day of Repentance for the Unborn in London on 26 March, while over 1,000 joined online.

Participants found it moving, with one saying: “It was even better than I expected – really powerful”.

Speakers included long-term pro-life campaigners Rev Lynda Rose of Voice for Justice UK and Andrea Williams, CEO of Christian Concern, who gave a detailed account of their recent battles to combat laws that would allow more unborn children to be legally killed.

Brenda Taylor of Dovetailshalom Ministries led worship with her daughter, Julie, and also spoke on how God feels about Britain's disregard for the sacredness of life.

Pastor Dennis Greenidge of Worldwide Mission Fellowship led a powerful time of prayer at the end.

Pauline Peachey thought she'd done the right thing by aborting her baby when she caught German Measles. But three years later, she ended up in a mental hospital. She gave her testimony at the Missing Millions day and a full version will be on the HEART website

In 1973 I ended up on a locked ward in a London psychiatric hospital.

Three years earlier, aged 24 and married with a young son, I had been persuaded to have a suction abortion because I had caught German Measles.

But my life was never the same after the abortion; full of remorse, everything frightened me and I was so drawn to death. One day I nearly walked off the tube platform before realising just in time that my little boy's hand was in mine.

I ended up on drugs and homeless, then in a mental hospital.

The voices in my head were my biggest problem. They kept telling me to give in to despair: “Give in! Life isn't worth living!” In the turmoil, I remembered that Jesus had said: “I am the way, the truth and the life.”

But Jesus had been killed. I prayed anyway: “Jesus. I don't know if you can hear me or help me. But if you can – I'll let you”.

Then a miracle happened: I had my first real sleep for years. When I woke up, the voices had left me. I left hospital in less than a week and got rid of the drugs they gave me. I had the shakes, and often collapsed, it took quite a while before they were out of my system.

Looking back, I can hardly believe what I've endured. What I've survived.

I have a lovely life now, but I don't forget that there are so many women and young girls who have been through the same trauma and struggle as I did.

So I founded PASE (Post Abortion Support for Everyone) and have been contacted by women from over 70 countries. I also wrote a recovery course, which has helped over 20 women to date.

We continue to be contacted almost daily by women and men who have lost a family baby to abortion. There is no recognition of how this so often devastates a whole family, but the healing bought on the cross by the blood of the Lamb is greater than the trauma.

Almost all of these decided to keep their babies when they saw the baby's development, understood that it was their little son or daughter, recognised that this is an unexpected gift from the Creator, and they could trust in him no matter how difficult their circumstances.

EUROPE

Christians ARE persecuted in the West

Shutterstock

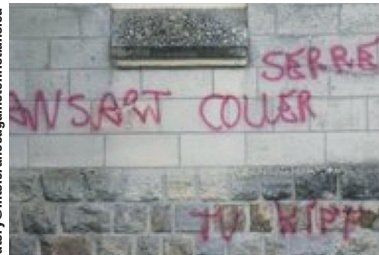

By accident or design? Notre-Dame, Paris goes up in flames. While this may have been an accident, many others have been intentional. Churches are being vandalised and burned down all over the continent, resulting in a more militantly atheistic, Islamic or hostile Europe for Jews and Christians to reckon with

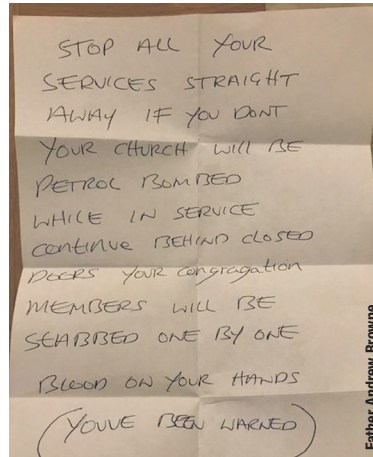

A charity supporting Christians suffering around the world says Christians really are being persecuted in the democratic West.

For many years Western Christians have been reluctant to call the hardships that they endure for their faith 'persecution' – because it is not as severe as in many other countries.

However, the March/April issue of Barnabas Fund's magazine states: "The Western world has enjoyed unprecedented freedom to worship and practise the Christian faith over the last two centuries, to the extent that some will deny that persecution in the West is a reality."

Insults spray painted onto the wall of a church in Curlu, France. The insult was directed towards the parish priest Sylvain Mansart, who commented: "At least I'm not alone in this problem. (...) We comfort each other"

Threatening letter sent to St Mary's Church, High Green, Sheffield on 4 January 2019 stamped with a West Midlands postcode. Other Roman Catholic Churches in the area received the same or similar letters. <https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-england-46891432>

"Certainly, persecution in the West is overall nothing as compared to that endured by believers in the Islamic world, under communist rule, or in other contexts... But that does not mean that persecution does not exist."

According to International Director Patrick Sookhdeo, "The West is not merely passively post-Christian and indifferent to Christianity; it is now actively anti-Christian and profoundly intolerant of the Christian faith."

Vandalism and burglary of Christian churches continues to happen very frequently, accordingly to the Observatory on Intolerance and Discrimination Against Christians in Europe.

Previously their reports have mainly come from France and Italy, but lately there has been an increase in incidents in Austria and Poland. The graffiti tags tend to reflect an evident bias, as they often contain insults or obscene content.

"The lack of respect for Christian sentiments was again visible after two young men filmed themselves dancing in a sexual manner by a crucifix in France", reported the Observatory's director, Madeleine Enzlberger.

Churches across the UK also suffered 4,169 incidents of theft, vandalism, physical assault or burglary in 2020-21, according to the Countryside Alliance, which gathered figures from 40 of the country's 45 official police offices.

Siloam's Ministry of Giving

(2 Corinthians 9:7)

Expressing God's love by providing medical aid, education, social and other relief worldwide.

Since 2007, Siloam's giving friends have invested over £161,420 in Rehoboth's vulnerable but precious children that's over £10,000 most years! Please help us to continue.

Featuring the Rehoboth Children's Centre - Philippines

Just 5 years ago on 16th February 2017 a concerned bystander reported a suspicious green polythene bag left at the rear of one of the shops in Tanay district market. When the police arrived, they discovered a baby weighing no more than the weight of a bag of sugar who had been obviously abandoned by a desperate mother unable to care for it. Later, the baby was rescued by the Tanay Social Services who then entrusted the precious 'package' in the green bag to the Rehoboth Children's Centre on 22nd February 2017.

LITTLE DANIELLA BEGAN LIFE IN A GREEN POLYTHENE BAG

The caring staff at Rehoboth named this little foundling Daniella and cared for her in every way possible to help her reach her full potential. It was only because someone took prompt action that Daniella's precious life was saved.

The Rehoboth staff have cared for little Daniella and seen her blossom and flourish into the precious child you see here pictured exploring the trees in the garden in March last year. (2021)

This is what Daniella looks like now at the beginning of 2022 dressed in her school uniform at the Rehoboth Early Learning Centre. As she is now 5 years old, Rehoboth is working with the Filipino Social Services (DSWD) to help locate a 'forever family' who will adopt Daniella and care for her until she is a young adult.

CHINA

FREE CHURCHES BANNED FROM INTERNET

COMMUNISTS REWRITE THE BIBLE

The Chinese government is turning the Bible into communist propaganda.

Christian watchdog Voice of the Martyrs (VOM) told Faithwire that China is producing a new Bible translation to "support the Communist Party".

The ten-year project that began in 2019 aims to persuade people that "their ultimate goal is to be a 'good communist'."

In the new Chinese version, Jesus stones the woman himself!

VOM give as an example the story of the adulterous woman in John chapter 8. In the passage, Jesus forgives the woman after stopping a crowd from stoning her to death by saying: "Let any one of you who is without sin be the first to throw a stone at her" (John 8:7).

Chinese Christian woman arrested for trying to share the Gospel with President Xi Jinping

But the new Chinese version adds that Jesus stones the woman himself – and admits he also is a sinner! As a sinner, Jesus can't be God, so the idea is obviously to remove Jesus' divinity.

Meanwhile, a Christian woman who has been repeatedly arrested for trying to share the Gospel with Chinese President Xi Jinping was detained again on 20 February.

Zhou Jinxia held up a sign encouraging Xi to follow Jesus outside the Communist Party headquarters in Beijing. Bitter Winter report that she has been trying to evangelise Xi ever since he became President in 2013.

UGANDA

Evangelist murdered at open-air rally

Extremist Muslims killed an evangelist speaking at an open-air meeting in Uganda in March.

Morning Star News reported that the murderers beat John Michael Okero to death with iron bars, stones and sticks after he quoted verses in the Koran that mention Jesus. They later burned his body.

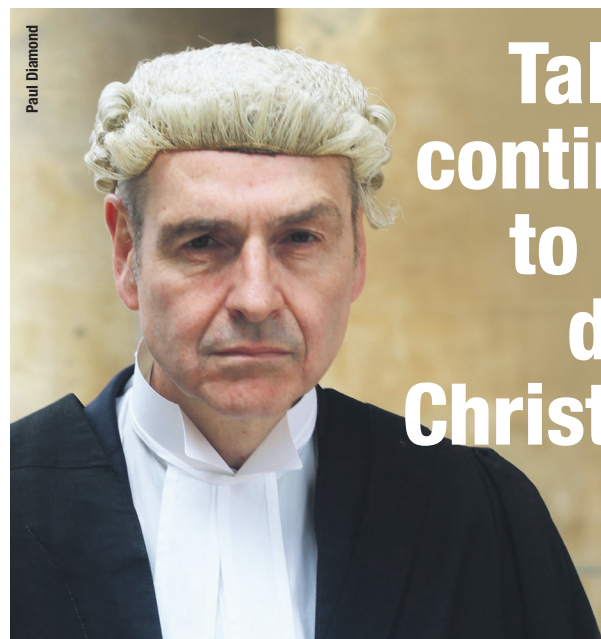

The police were called but arrived too late.

Another evangelist escaped with his life in February after Muslim relatives beat him and tied him up to be burned to death. Malingumu Bruhan was rescued when his captors fled after the plot was discovered.

AFGHANISTAN

Taliban continues to hunt down Christians

Paul Diamond, the leading UK barrister on religious and human rights

The door-to-door search for Christians in Afghanistan and their subsequent murder by the Taliban, which began after the US and UK withdrew their forces, hasn't stopped.

UK Christian barrister Paul Diamond, who has been in constant contact with Afghan Christians since last summer, says Christians in the country are in hiding. He is therefore seeking an urgent meeting with the government minister responsible for the resettlement of Afghan citizens, because the government is insisting Christians wait until 2023 to even start to apply to come to the UK. Mr Diamond believes many lives are being lost as a result.

The door to door search for Christians goes on

BURKINA FASO

COUP LEADER PROMISES TO FIGHT JIHADISTS

The military leader sworn in as president of Burkina Faso after ousting the elected president has promised to crush the Islamist insurgency.

Jihadist invasions have claimed the lives of thousands of civilians and displaced over 1.4 million people, but in his first speech as president, Lieutenant Colonel Paul Henri Damiba prioritised defeating the militants and led a moment of silence for the war's victims, which have included many Christians.

The former president's failure to protect the country was the prime reason for the coup, according to the leaders. Barnabas Fund reports that Christians have mainly fled the most dangerous places, where churches are shut or destroyed. A few believers still worship in secret.

New Burkina Faso leader Paul Henri Damiba

President Xi Jinping has ordered a new crackdown on 'religious propaganda' on the internet

House churches that relied on the internet to continue virtual meetings and teaching during Covid-19 restrictions will now struggle to communicate because of the latest Chinese crackdown.

Since 1 March, only officially registered churches are allowed to place religious information on the internet. The official churches are tightly controlled by the Chinese Communist Party.

"Even a prayer meeting could be detected and your home raided"

The five government-approved religious organisations that can apply for permission to use the internet are the Three-Self Patriotic Movement (officially approved Protestant churches), the Chinese Patriotic Catholic Association and the registered organisations of Buddhism, Islam and Taoism.

According to a partner of Release International, which supports persecuted Christians, "There are millions of online police. They report any suspicious online religious activity. So even a prayer meeting could be detected and sometimes reported, and your home could be raided."

The ban contravenes China's own constitution and the international conventions that the government has signed.

It is estimated that over 100 million people belong to unregistered churches.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

USA: ABORTION UP TO BIRTH REJECTED BY SENATE

Senator Joe Manchin who defied his party to vote against an extremely liberal abortion law

A radical abortion bill was only narrowly defeated in the US Senate because just one Democrat voted with the Republicans.

The Women's Health Protection Act would have over-ridden most state-level abortion restrictions, allowing abortion on demand up to birth across the whole of the USA.

Life Site News reported that the Act failed in the Senate by a vote of just 48 to 46 on 28 February because Democrat Senator Joe Manchin voted with his conscience.

President Biden had signalled his support for the Act in his pre-election manifesto.

Meanwhile, a ban on abortion of Down's Syndrome babies in Tennessee has been upheld after previously being halted by an earlier court order. In February, the US Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit reinstated the 2020 Tennessee law that bans abortions purely for reasons of Down's syndrome, race or gender.

Pro-life lobbyist Marjorie Dannenfelser said: "Abortions based on sex, race or disability diagnosis are a form of modern-day eugenics, permitted at any point in pregnancy – even right up to birth – in America, thanks to the Supreme Court's extreme precedents."

The World Health Organisation has called for the full decriminalisation of abortion worldwide. On 9 March it released a document on abortion that described it as "lifesaving care".

CANADA: Freedom under threat

Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has suppressed dissent

Canada is falling into authoritarianism, according to Rev Kameel Majdali – the International Bible Teacher for Teach All Nations – Europe.

Writing for Christianity magazine in February, Majdali claims that "a political, cultural and spiritual earthquake is going on in Canada".

The drift towards liberal values in recent years, led by Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, is indisputable, but the political moves to suppress dissent on Covid issues are an even more worrying trend.

This was especially apparent in the government's recent drive to stop thousands of truckers in Ottawa from protesting against vaccine mandates by blocking roads.

Canadian authorities used controversial measures to tackle the truckers, including freezing protesters' bank accounts. Majdali says Christians should be concerned. He wrote: "Since most of the truckers are already vaccinated (and Canada has one of the highest rates of vaccination in the world), it is important to recognise this is not an 'anti-vaccine' protest – but rather an 'anti-mandate' protest."

Majdali believes "progressivism" in Canada is now "more secular, humanistic, and guided by cultural Marxism, which seeks to redefine nationhood, gender, marriage and family."

ITALY: COURT STOPS VOTE ON ASSISTED SUICIDE

Italy's top court has ruled that changing the law to allow doctor-assisted suicide would be against the constitution.

The constitutional court therefore blocked a referendum from being held on the issue, after 1.2 million Italians signed a petition for a vote on it.

Catholic bishops welcomed the decision. The Pope had earlier stated that euthanasia and assisted suicide were "neither human nor Christian" and called for more palliative care instead.

The court ruled that approving assisted suicide would mean that "the constitutionally necessary minimum protection of human life, in general, and with particular reference to weak and vulnerable persons, would not be preserved."

Pope Francis has condemned the "unacceptable drifts towards killing"

A truly inspiring message from our friend in Romania.

As a pastor and as a missionary who lived and served in Ukraine for over a decade, I'd like to explain to western Christians the REAL reason behind the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

TO UNDERSTAND WHAT IS HAPPENING and why, we need to look beyond the physical warfare which fills our screens to the spiritual warfare that is unseen.

When the Soviet Union collapsed, and with it the state-imposed atheism of the Communists, there was a great spiritual harvest. Millions came to faith in Christ. And while the Lord brought in a harvest from all over the former Soviet nations, by far the greatest number of conversions occurred in Ukraine.

Ukraine has always been the "Bread Basket" of eastern Europe, and that is true not only agriculturally, but spiritually. Ukraine is truly "The Bible Belt" not only of the Slavic countries but now of Europe itself. And beginning in the mid-2000s, churches all across Ukraine began sending missionaries to the least-reached and hardest to reach peoples of the world. The Bread of Life is going forth from the fertile spiritual soil in Ukraine to every continent on earth.

THAT is what Satan is desperately trying to stop. THAT is the spiritual warfare behind the physical warfare.

Satan's primary strategies have always been to POLLUTE the message of the gospel or to PERSECUTE the messengers of the gospel.

Satan is using a wicked dictator to build a new "iron curtain". This time, his goal is not to keep the gospel OUT but to keep it IN. It's too late to stop the gospel from spreading INSIDE Ukraine, but he is now trying to stop it from spreading FROM Ukraine.

But here's the good news: The Word of God cannot be chained. As millions of Ukrainians flee the violence, there will be many born-again believers among them. And, just like they did in the first Russian invasion in 2014, they will carry the gospel of Jesus Christ with them wherever they go.

What men intend for evil, God will use for good.

I lived among these believers. I know them. I've seen how they respond to war and to life as refugees. I've seen their courage and their devotion to Christ firsthand. So I am confident and praying that they, like the refugees from the church in Jerusalem described in Acts 8:4, will take the gospel with them wherever they are scattered by this invasion.

"Those who had been scattered went about preaching the word." Acts 8:4

THAT is what GOD is doing.

Divitia Gratiae University has opened its doors and 68 Ukrainians are living in the student housing and 100s in the summer camp out at Vatici. Help us with the costs of looking after them and sharing with others that are on the road.

Ephesians 6:12 reminds us:

"Our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the powers, against the world forces of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places."

False promises

The question on page 1 of the Feb/Mar issue ("Dare we believe a New Year's Eve prophecy that promises a leader who cannot be bought?") gets a "No" from me.

We have had so many predictions of blessing just down the road and all of them have come to naught. It seems that people can desire something good to happen and then make a prophetic utterance that says that God is about to do the thing desired.

You note on page 9 that these prophecies need to be weighed, but by putting this on the front page you give credibility to something that has not been weighed.

"To the law and to the testimony"; I'm taking Isaiah's advice and ignoring what "prophetic ministries" say.

Sorry if I sound judgemental, but I can't let this go by.

The lost tribes

Your editing greatly improved my article, but there was one possible minor error!

The added sentence: "They (the ten northern tribes) would lose their homes and their freedom for a generation" is not strictly true.

"Many generations" would be more accurate. Some did return and others escaped to Judah beforehand but the majority became what is controversially known as the ten lost tribes of Israel. They will certainly be reunited with Judah in the Messianic Kingdom or perhaps already, depending upon how Ezekiel 36:16-28 and 37:15-28 are interpreted.

Jesus ministered in Israel and said he was sent only to the lost sheep of Israel (Matthew 15:24). So, were all tribes represented? Who knows? It is an historical dilemma.

Eating at Easter

How many feel that as a nation we don't commemorate Easter properly?

Easter has, for many, become an extension of Christmas. "Happy Easter" is proclaimed, and chocolate eggs, bunnies and hot cross buns proliferate – this last being a particular offence to the Lord as it combines the pleasure of eating with the terrible suffering of the Cross.

All this detracts from what Jesus went through to bring us salvation.

How can we change this emphasis on eating at Easter?

No hope for wolves

I was very shocked at the opening comments ("May they rot in hell") of the 'Wolves in sheep's clothing' article (Prophecy Today section, Feb/Mar).

Surely the writer should have expressed some Christian hope: "May they repent and be saved in prison ...?"

A fruitful creation

Our Sunday school teacher shared these inspiring thoughts with the whole congregation:

"Genesis 1:2 says that the earth was a dark, formless and desolate emptiness. So we, too, before we gave our lives to Jesus were aimless, powerless and chaotic voids, dark in our thinking and ways before God called us out of the darkness and into his wonderful light.

"God separated the light from the darkness and similarly separated us from this dark world and brought us into the kingdom of his dear Son.

God said: 'Let the earth sprout vegetation, plants yielding seed, [and] fruit trees...' (Genesis 1:11). Thus he gives us, too, a life full of joy and purpose, each of us filled with the seed of the new creation to scatter in our fields.

"When we resist the separation between the light and the darkness, our vegetation struggles to grow. "So let's embrace his light and life each day and our hearts will be filled again with the joy and gladness of the new creation."

Sabbath is for all

I appreciated Charles Gardner's article on the sabbath (Prophecy Today section, Feb/Mar).

God's laws and commandments (Exodus 20) may not be deemed applicable throughout the wilful nations. However, not to observe his sabbath rest, is to one's own detriment; both physically and spiritually, as Charles Gardner writes.

The Bible tells us to meditate on God's law and to obey it, because it is the source of blessing, as King David says (Psalm 119:1 – KJV):

"Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord".

And Isaiah promises: "If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the sabbath, a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable; and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob, thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it" (Isaiah 58:13 – 14)

Collapse of Western civilisation

The State is now seen as supreme – and woe betide you if you think differently

Western civilisation is tottering dangerously.

The primary cause is the abandonment of biblical Christianity.

The Bible makes it very plain that it is righteousness before God which alone exalts a nation (Proverbs 14:34).

Modern man, however, thinks that he is far too sophisticated to acknowledge the providence of God in such matters. So he trusts scientists and experts instead to provide all the answers.

But our institutions now favour cultural Marxism, which insists that the biblical teaching on marriage, gender and the family are outmoded and irrelevant.

Cultural Marxism also demands global co-ordination to deal with an alleged climate change crisis, and it vigorously promotes the idea that it is morally wrong for a nation to control its borders.

The new creed makes the State supreme, while its institutions are capable – eg by "following the science" – of solving all mankind's problems.

We see an open assault upon individual liberty; 'the establishment' denigrates or forbids public expression of any opinions contrary to the politically correct norm, even on medical issues. The State now presumes it can arbitrate on an individual's medical choices.

Note that our civilisation's collapse is taking place against the backdrop of increasing restrictions on the freedom of Christians publicly to proclaim all that the Bible teaches. When that freedom goes, then all other civil liberties are in danger as well, and even atheists should be worried.

The excessive fear generated over Covid 19 in the past two years represents a failure to believe the Christian doctrine of the fall of man, which teaches that sickness, including viruses, will be with us until the end of time.

"When the freedom to preach the whole Bible goes, even atheists should be worried"

He does not lock himself away, but gets on with the business of living

The Christian believer, while not being reckless about reasonable health precautions, has the confidence of knowing that his health is in the hands of the Almighty. He is therefore not overwhelmed by fear. If he is healthy, he thanks the Lord each new day for this grace.

He does not lock himself away, but gets on with the business of living. If he is overcome with sickness, he seeks the Lord afresh and submits himself to him.

The only answer to the collapse of our civilisation is the preaching of the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Man is far more than just a mindless digital entity to be dealt with by technocratic planners taking us into the great reset of a brave new world.

Man primarily is a sinner who needs saving by the grace of God in Jesus Christ.

Where is the 'new normal' Church?

It's time to raise our expectations

Recently I was praying for the sick in a meeting and lots of people came to the front for prayer... only there was no real expectancy to actually be healed.

These people came up to the front wanting a nice prayer for their sickness before returning to their seats.

When I pray for people, I don't pray a prayer for their sickness; I pray for a release of the healing power of God into them!

I prayed for one man who was healed straightaway. When I interviewed him in front of the church, he demonstrated his healing in front of everyone. By this time everyone had sat back down and I told them, "Come back up a second time, because you can be healed."

Rev Mark Gamblin: time for a new normal church

Normal church is what you see in the book of Acts

They had seen a healing! I knew there were more healings to come, but years of not seeing any supernatural had resulted in their expectations being set low.

You see, I am convinced that normal church is what you see in the book of Acts and in the life of Jesus; revival, the power of God let loose through the Holy Spirit, mass healings, raising of the dead, salvations, demons cast out, prophetic ministry, together with a lifestyle of holiness and the preaching of repentance. I believe that this is the standard that is set for normal church life!

Everything below that standard is subnormal church. And I believe that it is time to raise the standard and set heights higher for what can happen in church gatherings across the UK.

I know there are some good churches out there, but let me ask you when was the last time in church gatherings that there was an explosion of healings, deliverances, lives being changed, repentance, a flow of the prophetic, the power and presence of God radically touching people's lives, not only in one-off meetings, but on a regular basis?

In my own words Readers' longer letters

I was interested to read Eldo Barkhuizen's interpretation of the rapture question (Oct/Nov 2021) and then, in the Dec/Jan 2021-22 paper, letters from John Stone and Bertram Lewis.

Yet the rapture (and other 'endtime' topics) seem to rely on much assumption and guesswork.

Peter said the prophetic Word was "as a light that shines in a dark place" (2 Peter 1:9) much needed when the clouds of sin are everywhere.

By searching the Scriptures (as Jesus urged) we can learn the truth.

I believe a key to interpreting the Book of Revelation and seeing "where we are at", is to take note of Daniel 12, where the

ENDTIME GUESSWORK

I see Revelation as a history of the last 2,500 years

John Zipser

angel says twice: "Shut up the words and seal the book till the time of the end".

Since 1967 when Israel took back Jerusalem and the Temple Mount, surely the "times of the gentiles" have been fulfilled (Luke 2:24; and Revelation 11:2), ushering in a new season, the 'time of the end'.

Furthermore, if we use the 'day-year principle' on the "months", "weeks" and "days" passages in Daniel (and Revelation – adjusting the Old Testament's lunar months and New Testament's solar calendar) to call one day = one year, then the book of Revelation can be seen as a history of the Church and Israel over the last approx 2,500 years.

By comparing and examining biblical prophetic narratives, one gets to see an unfolding picture of the identity of the "abomination of desolation" (Dome of the Rock) and understand the looming Islamic Jihadist threat. (See Daniel 7:4,5,6 and Rev 13:2 – the three-part Beast).

I can understand people sticking loyally to a long-held interpretation (notably the Pre-millennial which provides an "opt-out" of trouble) - and I held that for 50-odd years!

However, since facing up to the discrepancies in that viewpoint (such as the positioning of the rapture when Jesus said "AFTER the tribulation of those days", "with the sound of a great trumpet" the "angels would gather the elect...") and recalling things I was told when first saved, it seems to me that prophetic truth – like many other biblical doctrines – has suffered in these lax and self-reliant days.

To get a fuller picture, go to ellisskolfield.net I believe it will open our eyes to view the urgency of the hour now upon us.

CREATION CORNER

by Geoff Chapman

In his famous 'Origin of Species', Charles Darwin wrote: "We may safely infer that not one living species will transmit its unaltered likeness to a distant futurity."

Thus evolution is popularly seen as a process of continuous change over time, so most people would be surprised to learn that hundreds of organisms have remained virtually unchanged.

One of the most famous 'living fossils' is the coelacanth fish, believed to have been extinct for 65 million years, until a living specimen was caught off South Africa in 1938!

How could these species resist change for so long?

What amazed evolutionists was the fact that the living fish was little different from fossils claimed to be "350 million years old." Many live coelacanths have since been found. Why are there no fossils in rocks younger than 65 million years? And how could they defy evolution and remain unchanged for 350 million years? This suggests that this timescale is an illusion.

If the fossils really are 50 million years old, where have they been hiding?

Living horseshoe crabs, and aquatic animals known as sea lilies or crinoids, are almost identical to fossils dated at 500 million years old. How could they resist change for so long? Marine scientists had a big surprise when they caught a "Jurassic shrimp" – a member of the lobster family – off Australia in 2006. They were thought to have been extinct for 50 million years – the date assigned to the most recent fossils. Why haven't they evolved, and if the fossils really are 50 million years old, where have they been hiding?

WHY HAVEN'T THEY EVOLVED?

"Living fossils" undermine Darwin's theory

There are also some "living fossil" plants. The wollemia tree was thought to have died out two million years ago until it was found growing in a remote part of Australia in 1994. The oldest wollemia fossils are dated at 200 million years old.

The ginkgo biloba tree

Ginkgo trees, with their fan-shaped leaves, are unique, and unrelated to any other tree. Fossil ginkgo leaves are found in rocks said to be 270 million years old. There is no fossil evidence that they evolved from any other plant, and they have clearly not evolved since those first fossils were formed.

Fossilised ginkgo leaves

Ancient coelacanth fossil

These, and many other examples, pose a serious challenge to Darwin's theory of continuous biological change. Lack of change over a short period of time is not a problem, but the idea that any creature remained unchanged for tens or even hundreds of millions of years stretches credibility.

The older you believe the earth to be, the greater the problem. However, this is exactly what we would expect to find if the Genesis account is true. Some things have remained virtually unchanged throughout earth history, some have undergone limited change, and some have become extinct.

There is no evidence of one kind evolving into another kind

But there is no evidence of one kind evolving into another kind. That's why we can classify organisms, and why there are no transitional forms. Nature — God's creation — is dependable, just like God himself, and Jesus Christ his Son, who is "the same yesterday, and today and for ever" (Hebrews 13: 8).

HEALINGS FROM COVID

Two recent healings from Covid have taken place at one of HEART's newer supporting churches in the north of England. This is what the pastor reported earlier this year:

One of our young men, aged 32 and on dialysis, contracted the Delta variant.

There have been previous cases of miraculous healing in his family. He was taken into hospital, but there was no treatment given, apparently because of medical complications and his serious condition.

There were also very few staff available that weekend and his body was failing in every area. His wife spoke to him several times, but when she phoned on the Monday morning, he was too weak even to speak.

We called a group together for immediate prayer at short notice at lunchtime. Less than two hours later, he called his wife to say he was sitting up in bed and eating. The medics observed this, put him in ICU, apparently on steroids, and then two days later he was home!

The second case was a young mum in hospital with Covid, struggling to breathe, not responding to treatment and deteriorating. This came to a head on Sunday morning, so we prayed in the church service and following this she had a speedy recovery. Praise the Lord!

VACCINE SIDE EFFECTS: "ASK JESUS TO HEAL YOU"

HEART reader Susan Edgley had previously received miraculous healing from a persistent low-grade temperature after taking the flu jab.

So when her mother-in-law became unwell after having the Pfizer shot, Susan told her about the reputedly toxic contents of the vaccine. "She cried buckets and repented thoroughly. My husband and I prayed for her in the powerful name of Jesus, and she was healed straight away."

She adds: "The Lord is very willing to heal us of this evil, but we do need to repent. He is no respecter of persons. Look to Jesus in all humility, and ask him to heal you."

Prayer for healing from adverse reactions

This prayer came to David Tidy, director of Prayer Warriors International, early one morning in May 2021. It has been on our website since last year, but we have recently been asked to print it to make it available for those who regret their medical decisions

David Tidy

Father, I am sorry not to have trusted you fully regarding my spirit, soul, body, and my future.

I am sorry that I have responded to the world's manipulations. I felt it right at the time but I have now come into further revelation knowing that it was not from you.

I am now aware that I have in my body something that is contrary to your created immune system given to me when born; for this I am truly sorry.

I now recommit my spirit, soul and body to you in Jesus' name.

In your name I now take authority over and cancel all negative effects from these jabs and loose myself from all future repercussions from them. I speak to my immune system to take back control of my spirit, soul and bodily protection as ordained by God.

I ask you Lord, if you would be generous in your unfailing grace and restore what has been stolen from me, that I may serve you fully with all that I am.

I declare that my spirit, body and soul will be healed and restored according to Psalm 91:5-11 in Jesus' name.

Amen.

WE CAN HAVE CONFIDENCE IN GOD – JUST DON'T GET COMPLACENT

BY ROGER FRENCH

Things are moving very fast towards the Bible's end-time scenario and the end of the age – so why are so many Christians asleep?

A family joins the protest against Russia's invasion in London on 25 February

We don't know if Putin's invasion of Ukraine is the start of events leading up to the prophesied invasion of Israel and we certainly don't know how far Putin will go – but God does.

While Christians seem to be asleep to the reality of the days in which we live, the Bible's account of Samson and Delilah is the classic case of someone letting their guard down and falling asleep spiritually. When Samson became aware that his strength had left him, it was too late to start fighting the enemy (Judges 16).

Samson once depended on God for his every move. But with his senses dulled, he thought that he could do what he had always done. God, however, being sovereign, doesn't always do what he did before.

Proverbs 3:6 says: "Acknowledge him in all your ways, and he will make your paths straight."

Most of our internal agony, our battles and frustrations, come from having misplaced confidence

To acknowledge means to observe him, think about him and get to know him more and more.

When we fall asleep in the lap of Delilah we become powerless, just like Samson. To avoid being caught out, God's people need to be alert, full of the Holy Spirit and sensitive to the reality of the days in which we are living. As the apostle Paul advises, "Let us not be like others, who are asleep, but let us be alert and self-controlled" (1 Thessalonians 5:6).

We need to be rooted in Christ, his Word, his promises and his ways. Most of our internal agony, our battles and frustrations, come from having misplaced confidence. Let's make sure our confidence is firmly placed in the Lord who has promised to be with us always and who will never let us down.

The apostle Paul's confidence comes from the assurance that he is in Christ and that his strength comes from Christ alone.

Confidence is taking your present situation, whatever obstacles you are facing, whatever limitations you are living with, whatever chronic condition may be wearing you down or past failures in life – admitting you don't like them, but drawing on God's strength to get through. As soon as we say, "I can't cope", we are contradicting the promises of God and failing to draw on the resources of the Holy Spirit within us.

Quitting is not an option for a Christian! I personally can't think of one quitter who was ever successful and am very grateful that Jesus never once considered quitting.

Three things can help us with confidence: 1. Establish your worth according to God's value system, not the world's. It's what God thinks that counts!

God's Kingdom is paradoxical in that the way to life is through death – the Cross and death to self (one's own agenda).

Jesus said: "Blessed are the meek (humble), for they will inherit the earth" (Matthew 5:5). This is opposite to the world's view.

God demonstrated our importance to him by creating us in his image. Thus we all have creative talents and gifts, things the devil hates.

If you had been the only person who had ever lived, the Father would still have sent his Son Jesus to redeem you. That makes you priceless!

God's promises will never be broken, because they are built on God's mercy which is everlasting.

"Though the mountains be shaken, and the hills be removed, yet my unfailing love for you will not be shaken nor my covenant of peace be removed", says the Lord, who has compassion on you (Isaiah 54:10).

2. Surround yourself with confidence-builders, encouragers who don't try to pull you down.

Most of us think good things about other people but we rarely tell them, so allow the Holy Spirit, the supreme encourager, to help you encourage others. However spiritually mature we may be, sincere encouragement never fails to help. There is no better exercise for strengthening the heart than stooping to lift somebody else up.

We are more than equal to the task to which God has called us

3. The third suggestion for helping us with confidence is that we should stop comparing ourselves with others. Each of us is unique, specially crafted and designed by God and more than equal to the task to which God has called us.

When we allow the Holy Spirit to do his work in us, we have total confidence in the Lord which in turn will influence those around us.

Isaiah said of God: "He will not falter or be discouraged till he establishes justice on the earth" (Isaiah 42:4).

So while we don't know what is coming next in the world, or when the Lord is coming for his Church, we do know that God knows the future. He is the future for every born again believer in Christ. Put your confidence in him.

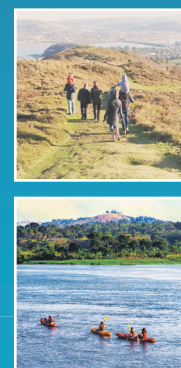

Roger French has been in church leadership in Chichester and Portsmouth for 38 years and was a lecturer at Christ For The Nations Bible College for 12 years. HOW TO AVOID FALLING INTO THE FEAR TRAP

Fear

By R T Kendall

Charisma Media, 2022

One thing about getting older is that you are more fearless in what you say. Pastor R T Kendall is 86 and has just produced a book on fear; its full title is 'The Good, The Bad, and the Ugly Fear'. This is classic R T Kendall, written with thought-provoking accuracy. RT is seeking to awaken the Church to the majestic, holy God we serve, and help us prepare for the day we stand before him.

His introduction includes a famous quote from

William Booth (1829-1912), the founder of the Salvation Army:

"I consider that the chief dangers which confront the coming century will be

- religion without the Holy Ghost,
- Christianity without Christ,
- forgiveness without repentance,
- salvation without regeneration,
- politics without God,
- and heaven without hell."

Preaching on holy fear, and Jesus's own teaching of eternal punishment, have largely been avoided because we are afraid people won't come back to church

RT tells us, "I cut my teeth on this kind of theology, including the preaching on hell."

He firmly believes a sense of fear and awe of God should accompany the preaching and reception of the Gospel. Having spent a lifetime in the Church, he has concluded that preaching on fear, and Jesus's own teaching of eternal punishment, have largely been avoided because we are afraid people won't come back to church.

He argues that the opposite is true; one of the reasons for empty churches is a lack of preaching on 'godly fear'.

RT isn't just sharing an old man's opinion. He takes us back to the Scriptures – many of them.

The first message of John the Baptist was "Flee from the wrath to come" (Matthew 3:7).

The first word of Jesus's preaching was "Repent" (Matthew 4:17).

The only reference to the Gospel in the book of Revelation is to "fear God" (Revelation 14.6-7).

The 3,000 saved on the day of Pentecost, had "fear in their souls ... and the signs and wonders followed" (Acts 2:43).

Amal trained as a nurse and went on to become a midwife. She worked almost single-handedly among many of the poorest of Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. It was the days before oil took hold on the country and transformed it to what we see on TV today.

This is certainly not the kind of book I would normally pick up and read. Most men wouldn't want to read about midwifery, but don't be put off.

This book is about the culture and traditions of areas of the Middle East we know so little of, and which have changed radically in a lifetime. It is about a woman with a strong Christian identity who succeeded in a male dominated Arab world.

There are some books whose contents I forget after a few weeks. That's not the case here. It is a book about a slightly eccentric lady, well written, full of history of an area we know so little of, with a strong Christian input. I find I keep thinking about it and am sure it will have the same effect on you.

The sisters who survived a year in Auschwitz

Always Remember Your Name: The Children of Auschwitz

By Andra and Tatiana Bucci

Bonnier Books, 2022

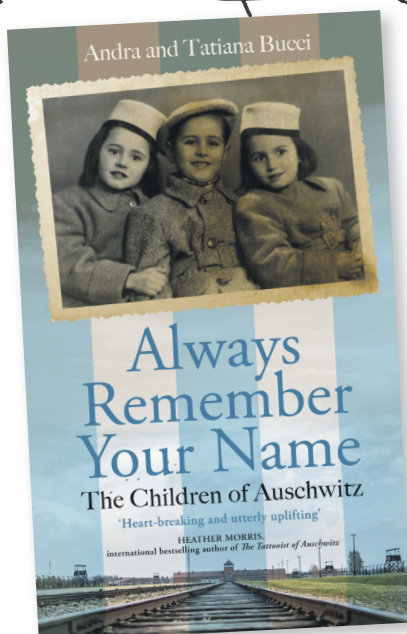

By rights, the sibling authors of this remarkable new book should not be alive.

They are two sisters; Andra, 82, lives in California, and her elder sister Tatiana, 84, is in Brussels.

They were two of the 230,000 children under the age of ten deported by the Nazis from occupied Europe to the death camp of Auschwitz. When the war ceased, just 70 of those children had survived, including Andra and Tatiana. An estimated 1.5 million children perished in the Holocaust.

The sisters were taken to Auschwitz along with their Jewish seamstress mother, their grandmother, their aunt and their six-year-old cousin, Sergio from their home town of Fiume in northern Italy and taken to Auschwitz along with their Jewish seamstress mother, their grandmother, their aunt and their six-year-old cousin, Sergio.

The account of their ordeal is powerful and heartbreaking. In 1944, the girls were deported

At Auschwitz they were separated from their mother and other family members. Somehow their mother managed on five occasions to visit the 'Kinderblock' barracks where they were. Each time she would hug and kiss them, and urge them to repeat their names. "Always remember your names" she pleaded with them, so that if they survived to liberation, their true identities would be known.

After November 1944 she never visited again. They assumed she had died. The sisters were liberated by Russian soldiers on 27 January 1945, after which they were transferred to a bleak orphanage in Poland.

They discovered toys, fresh food, soft clean beds, and a garden filled with flowers

In April 1946, they were flown to England. They had been chosen by the Jewish Refugee Committee to be part of a rehabilitation scheme at Lingfield House, Surrey, owned by Sir Benjamin Drage, an English Jew. The house was being used to help hundreds of children recover their stolen childhood; here they discovered toys, fresh food, soft clean beds, and a garden filled with flowers.

The girls had been at Lingfield

House for eight months when news reached them that, "Your mamma and papa are alive". "We were euphoric", recalls Tatiana.

A few weeks later, the girls, in identical blue coats, boarded a train to Dover and then journeyed on to Rome where their mother was to meet them. On arrival at Rome's station, a great crowd had gathered to greet them. "We were so overwhelmed we burst into tears", writes Tatiana. "Mamma hugged and kissed us and did her best to reassure us".

Children would see the tattooed number on their arm and ask if it was their telephone number

Of the 13 relatives who had been arrested and imprisoned, just four returned; the sisters were particularly affected by the murder of their cousin Sergio.

When she tried to tell people what had happened in Auschwitz, she wasn't believed

Life was difficult after their return to Italy. At school they were known as "the girls who had been in the camp", but no one asked about their past. Other children would see the number tattooed on their arm and ask if it was their telephone number.

"We said 'yes'. What else could we say?" says Andra.

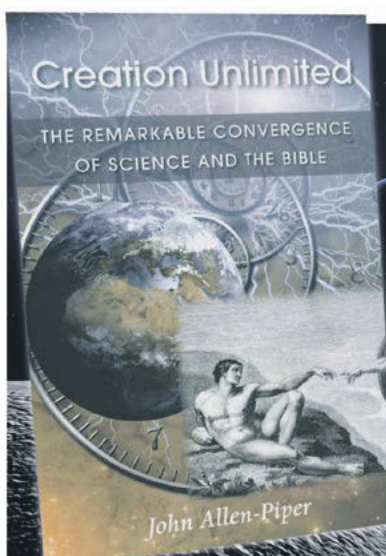

Their mother found that when she tried to tell people about what had happened in Auschwitz, she wasn't believed, and so she stopped talking about it. She forbade the sisters to talk about it as well.

It was only after the death of their mamma and papa that the sisters began to confront what had happened to them. Their first journey back to Auschwitz was in 1996, and since then they have become prolific speakers on the Holocaust, telling their stories for future generations.

I have only given a glimpse of their story. But I am so glad that I have read it. You won't be disappointed if you read it, too.

Andra and Tatiana Bucci tell their story for future generations

BE A FRIEND OF HEART

Invitation from the founding editor:

HEART was started in 2007 in obedience to a vision for a Christian newspaper which would unite believers and give them a voice.

HEART is run completely by faith with a very small, dedicated team of editor, part-time administrator and freelance designer. It is funded by Christians who take out advertisements and donate because they believe in this paper.

Printing and postage cost thousands, and we need to be able to respond to requests for the paper in other areas, so would you pray about becoming a Friend of HEART?

Melanie Symonds

Partner with HEART's ministry by becoming a Friend of HEART. Friends donate £5 or more each month by standing order and receive a personal copy of HEART in the post each time it comes out.

Yes, I'd like to be a Friend of HEART

Please send me a standing order form ☐

I would like to donate £5 / £10 / £20 / £___ (please circle) per month to support HEART's ministry.

BOOKREVIEWS

By Gordon Pettie

He reminds us that Jesus never, ever apologised for the God of the Old Testament.

He moves on to a whole section on how the fear of God in our nation has gone. He is particularly relevant to today's society as he contrasts God's way and the way people are living.

An interesting chapter is on the fear of other people – the fear of being hurt by people. We live in an age where mental health issues are to the fore. This chapter will help many.

RT writes candidly of his own fear of failure throughout his life. He spent 25 years as minister of Westminster Chapel in London. Following its previous famous incumbent, Dr Martin Lloyd-Jones, RT writes: "I always felt like a failure next to him."

He lists eight reasons why, if we walk in the fear of man, it will affect our walk with God. I have no space to list the reasons here. Read the book to find them out!

Thankfully he has later chapters on overcoming the fear of man.

"When you make the fear of God your greatest priority, you can walk free of ungodly fear. 'Step out in courage and truly trust God ... This is my prayer for you', says RT.

Prayer topics

Digital Identity

Bible teacher Roger French told his prayer group: "Pray against the 'back door' implementation of digital identity through threat as credit and debit cards can be refused from yesterday without acceptable forms of identity being produced. This is part of the 'Mark of the Beast' set up being put in place by stealth by the globalists, led by Mark Carney, who is now a director of the WEF (World Economic Forum). An alternative credit card that will be accepted, according to Martin Lewis is the Amazon card, according to the Sunday Express on 13 March.

Online Safety Bill

While ostensibly a means of protecting children from harmful material, the Christian Institute is concerned that Ofcom and Big Tech companies could deem orthodox Christian teaching to be 'harmful'.

Doctors and scientists who veered from the government's official narrative on Covid-19 and the vaccines have already experienced censorship by YouTube and Facebook. This new bill would grant powers to non-elected officials to limit information, while promoting 'trusted' sources such as the BBC. See also UK Column's 18 March 2022 broadcast.

Human Rights bill

The Together Declaration hosted a seminar on 2 March to discuss concerns over this bill, one of four proposed laws which Brian Gerrish of UK Column believes are laying the foundations for a dictatorship.

How do I become a Christian?

BEING A CHRISTIAN is about a relationship with Jesus Christ, the only Son of the living God, who died in our place, to pay the price for our sin. He desires to welcome you into God's family here on earth and into heaven when you die.

To start this relationship, simply pray the prayer below; if you mean it, he'll respond, because the Bible says that God looks at our hearts.

The churches featured in this paper will be happy to welcome you and explain the importance of daily Bible reading, daily prayer, baptism, being part of a congregation where the Bible is preached and believed, and telling others about what Jesus has done for you.

“Dear God, I am a sinner and need forgiveness.

I believe that Jesus shed his precious blood and died for my sin.

I am willing to turn away from my sin.

I now invite Christ to come into my heart and life as my personal Saviour.
