New '10 Climate Commandments' unveiled at Mt Sinai

Leaders of major religions issue "a prophetic interreligious call to action"

Representatives of the world's major religions have espoused a fake 'Ten Commandments' and attended the first ever 'Climate Repentance Ceremony'.

As global leaders met in Sharm El-Sheikh for the COP27 Climate Conference in November, activists smashed tablets atop the traditional Mt Sinai and held a parallel interfaith 'climate repentance ceremony'.

Using pseudo-religious language, interfaith leaders have "put forth a prophetic interreligious call to action: 'Climate Justice: Ten Universal Commandments'."

The "Ten Universal Principles for Climate Justice" have been put together by interfaith leaders including Archbishop Rowan Williams, with the aim of "[initiating] a process of climate repentance" and calling people "to return to a correct vision of the Creation, the Creator, and the harmonious relationship of humanity with Creation."

And while the Egyptian government limited attendance at the 'repentance' ceremony, London was one of ten global cities that hosted ceremonies organised by the 'Elijah Institute' which brings together some of the world's most prominent religious figures from Judaism, Islam, Christianity, Buddhism and the religions of India.

This group of religious leaders is seeking "...a new vision for humanity and its endangered existence." They "seek to receive and amplify a message of life-sustaining living and habits that humanity needs to hear today."

The organisers also urged houses of worship around the world to join in at the same time on Sunday 13 November with prayer and study focused on this "transformative moment to protect our environment."

HEART COMMENT

THE REAL SOLUTION TO MANKIND'S PROBLEMS

For leaders of the world's religions to sign up to a new 'Ten Spiritual Principles', is beyond parody.

Mimicking the Ten Commandments given to Moses at Mount Sinai is grossly insulting to true adherents of Judaism and Christianity.

Rather than climbing the counterfeit Mount Sinai (the real one is believed to be in Saudi Arabia; see Galatians 4:25) to repent for sins against 'mother earth', the repentance call of those religious leaders at COP27 should have been for their own and mankind's sins.

One commentator has said: "The worship of mother earth, including the forming of a one world interfaith movement AND the deliberate casting away of the restraints of God's ten commandments, the repentance for 'sins' against mother earth, plus the deliberate crafting of counterfeit tablets displaying the ten climate change commandments is idolatry in its highest form."

Jesus paid a terrible price for our sins

Idolatry, the worship of anything other than God himself, has been in man's heart since the Garden of Eden. Whether or not you believe in the biblical account of sin coming into the world, few can doubt that sinful deeds – lying, cheating, coveting and killing to name but a few – are all done by man on a daily basis.

The way to heaven isn't through virtue signalling your concern for the climate

Indeed, a ban on idolatry is the first of the original Ten Commandments!

Adding a spiritual-sounding dimension to climate concern would be astonishing – if we didn't know from the Bible's last book, Revelation, that there will be a One World Religion as well as a One World Government at the end of time.

Universal truth

Trusting in our own efforts is another form of idolatry. Readers may not agree with every article in this paper, but they portray an underlying universal truth.

Man's efforts may work for a while, but when God is not acknowledged as the source and sustainer of all that is good on earth, failure follows.

Articles in this paper (and previous issues) make it clear we can no longer put our trust in our bank balance, the NHS or our Government to shield us. For many, whether we acknowledge it or not, these have become idols, things we trust in rather than acknowledging that, as Jesus said, without him we can do nothing.

So who will YOU worship this Christmas?

It's tempting to make Christmas and all its worldly trappings into another idol.

Yet although many look forward to time with family at Christmas, it is also famous for being a time of strife. Divorce applications increase after Christmas.

And for those on their own, Christmas can be achingly lonely.

The only man in history who can heal hearts died on a Cross 2,000 years ago – this is a historical fact – and rose again after three days. His body has never been found, but his followers turned the world upside-down, often choosing martyrdom rather than denying that he is God.

His death, prophesied centuries earlier in the 'Old Testament', was prepared by God to provide a way out for our sin. Jesus paid a terrible price for our sins, shedding his blood and allowing his body to be broken.

Christmas does not exist for our leisure, our presents, or even extra church services. Christmas – or rather the fact that God as Jesus became one of us – exists because we have sinned.

Jesus grew up as a perfect man, yet at the young age of 33 he was condemned to death and crucified, although the judge pronounced him "not guilty."

The Bible makes it clear that sin can only be atoned for by blood sacrifice.

The way to heaven isn't through virtue signalling your concern for the climate. It's through believing John 3:16: "For God so loved the world" (including its climate!) "that he gave his only begotten Son, that WHOEVER believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

The real emergency is that hordes are on their way to hell because they have not believed in the Son of God.

If you realise you need God, please pray the prayer on this page!

The REAL Ten Commandments (Exodus 20:2-17 NKJV)

- 1 "I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. You shall have no other gods before me.
- 2 "You shall not make for yourself a carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them.
- 3 "You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless who takes his name in vain (blasphemes).
- 4 "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy.
- 5 "Honour your father and your mother, that your days may be long upon the land which the Lord your God is giving you.
- 6 "You shall not murder.
- 7 "You shall not commit adultery.
- 8 "You shall not steal.
- 9 "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbour (lie).
- 10 "You shall not covet your neighbour's house; you shall not covet your neighbour's wife, nor his male servant, nor his female servant, nor his ox (fancy car?), nor his donkey, nor anything that is your neighbour's."

Who were the Wise Men?

There weren't just three and they wielded immense power. No wonder Herod was terrified!

Do I need this?

BEING A CHRISTIAN is about a relationship with Jesus Christ, the only Son of the living God, who died in our place, to pay the price for our sin. He desires to welcome you into God's family here on earth and into heaven when you die.

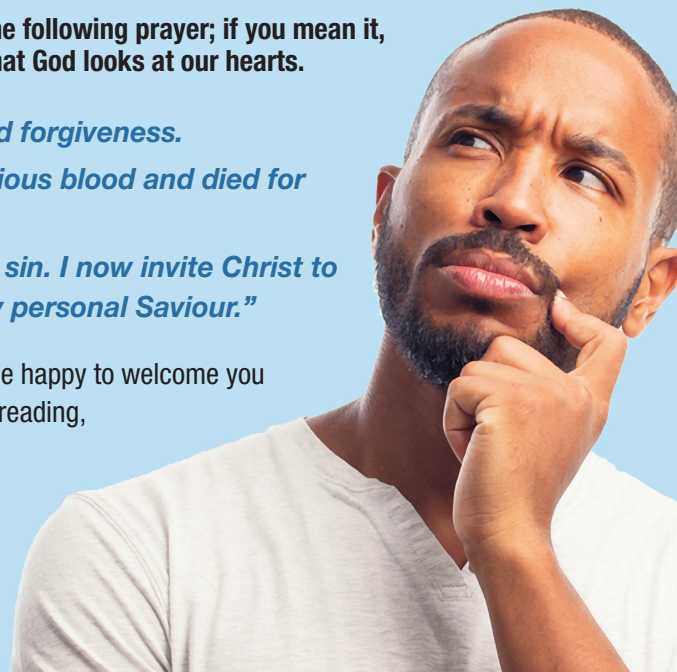

To start this relationship, simply pray the following prayer; if you mean it, he'll respond, because the Bible says that God looks at our hearts.

"Dear God, I am a sinner and need forgiveness.

I believe that Jesus shed his precious blood and died for my sin and rose from the dead.

I am willing to turn away from my sin. I now invite Christ to come into my heart and life as my personal Saviour."

The churches featured in this paper will be happy to welcome you and explain the importance of daily Bible reading, daily prayer, baptism, being part of a congregation where the Bible is preached and believed, and telling others about what Jesus has done for you.

PEOPLE & PLACES

GUIDED SAFELY INTO PORT

Maritime pilot Ben McDermott often strikes up conversations with the international crews of the ships he guides safely into port.

Ben has worked at sea all his life, but when it comes to faith, he's not all at sea. He says that his own anchor is Jesus, but he has found few opportunities to meet other true Christians.

"We pray for God's guidance and protection on the voyage"

So he was amazed to meet a Dutch captain in late summer who shared his faith. Ben told HEART, "I boarded a vessel and was discussing the state of our countries. I mentioned how we're seeing the spread of global communism, similar to 'Animal Farm' and '1984'. Normally I get very little back from people but this captain looked at me and said, 'I believe you.'"

They spent the entire navigation passage out to the Solent discussing Christianity and the captain let Ben pray for him.

It turned out that the entire crew, from the Netherlands, Philippines and Latvia are Christians. The captain said: "Every Sunday evening we come together to pray for God's guidance and protection on the voyage."

Now the vessel, the Liamere, comes in every week and Ben has been giving the captain Christian materials including copies of HEART and Roger Price's teaching.

Rejoicing for eternity

Author and speaker Jennifer Rees Larcombe (1942-2022) shared a "quiet and compelling hope in Christ" through her ministry, Beauty from Ashes. Many found hope as she shared her struggles with depression, chronic illness and the marital breakdown that followed a miraculous divine healing. Read Canon J John's tribute to her life at canonjohn.com/blog/archive

The Bible promises that all who put their trust in Jesus will have eternal life. Two pioneers who inspired many while they were with us are no doubt now rejoicing in heaven.

Pioneering Messianic Jewish theologian Dr David Stern (1935-2022), pictured with his wife Martha, produced the Complete Jewish Bible, a translation which challenged latent anti-Semitism within the Church.

Jonathan Bernis, CEO of Jewish Voice Ministries, said his Bible version "reintroduced many around the world to the 'Jewishness' of the Scriptures". A full obituary is at www.heartpublications.co.uk

HEALINGS IN PORTSMOUTH

Recovery of sight and restored mobility have been seen at healing meetings held in October.

The meetings were put on in Portsmouth by Doxa Encounters Ministries, who also held a well-attended prophetic conference this November (advertised in HEART's Oct/Nov issue).

Having just returned from conducting nightly healing crusades in Africa, the ministry's leader, Mark Gamblin, wanted to "continue the flow of the healing anointing."

She started walking unaided for the first time in two years

He added: "In developing countries such as India or Africa, we see amazing signs and wonders. Yet little is seen in the UK. We believe that it is time for the raw power of God to be let loose up and down the UK."

Mark's wife Sarah reports: "On the second night during Mark's preaching an elderly lady walked up to the front, stopping him to ask for her eyes to be healed. After a few minutes of praying, the woman started reading words from the projector screen, testifying that this was 'absolutely not normal' – the words would usually just have been a big blur."

Another woman who was known to a number of the congregation members had been bedridden since 2020, in pain and on morphine. Sarah told HEART: "She felt the pain leave her body as she started walking unaided for the first time in two years. She returned the following night to give her testimony!"

Other people experienced pain leaving their head, legs, hips, shoulders, stomach and nose, as well as relief from arthritic pain, with many reporting that they felt heat on the site of their pain during prayer. "There were many more who claimed to have been touched by the healing power of Jesus," says Sarah.

They plan to hold more healing events across the country in 2023.

NATIONAL NEWS BY ANDREW HALLOWAY

CHRISTIAN PARENTS WIN OVER SCHOOL'S TRANSGENDER POLICY

A Christian couple has won a change in government policy and £22,000 costs following a five-year legal battle.

Supported by the Christian Legal Centre, Nigel and Sally Rowe took legal action against the Department for Education after they and their six-year-old son were labelled 'transphobic' by a Church of England primary school for refusing to accept transgender ideology.

They suffered abuse from local people

The local Church of England diocese backed the school's position, and the parents suffered abuse from local people and activists who accused them of bigotry, leading to the Rows having to home school their sons.

Standing up for children: Nigel and Sally Rowe

The Government decided to settle the case after the Rows won permission at the High Court for a judicial review of transgenderism policies. Now the Government has promised to reform the policies in primary schools.

Meanwhile, the Scottish Government has paid out nearly £150,000 in legal fees after attempting to change the definition of woman to include men. Women's rights group For Women Scotland (FWS) took legal action against the Government for including men who identify as female in a law designed to increase the number of women on public boards.

PRO-LIFE POLITICIAN FACED "LYNCH MOB"

Former BBC journalist David Campanale is considering legal action to retain his position as Liberal Democrat candidate for Sutton and Cheam.

He told The Christian Institute that he had faced "direct harassment and hostility" from local Lib Dem activists who tried to have him deselected after they became aware of his pro-life views.

Campanale, an award-winning journalist who exposed Russian military involvement in Ukraine, became the Lib

Dem candidate in "an overwhelming vote" in January. Shockingly, Lib Dem members have since told him: "We do not recognise your right to have a conscience."

Campanale told Premier News: "I was subjected to a two hour interrogation for my Christian views... people were mocking me, saying, 'I suppose you think you're being persecuted, like Jesus was?'" Another even said... 'If I'd known about your Christian beliefs, I would never have agreed for you to be short-listed as the candidate.'"

He added: "This was a lynch mob determined to root me out when they discovered that I go to church."

Earlier this year, the SNP (Scottish National Party) gave one of its own MSPs a formal written warning for expressing pro-life views in public.

'MARK OF THE BEAST' REACHES BRITAIN

A West London man has become the first British person to be implanted with a bank microchip for making purchases – and it's in his hand.

Echoing the Bible's warnings about no one being able to buy or sell without the Mark of the Beast in the hand or forehead (Revelation 13:16-18), former MP Gyles Brandreth predicted that implants are "the future for all of us".

Daytime TV programme This Morning revealed in October that Arnie Szoke can now make purchases with a tap of his hand. The NHS healthcare assistant told The Sun: "It means I don't have to keep a wallet with me all the time."

However, like normal bank cards, his implant has an expiry date, meaning that he will need a £130 replacement operation in 2029.

A microchip implant in the hand

Gyles Brandreth called the technology "marvellous" and, according to The Daily Mail, said: "It's going to be the future for all of us... I want that to happen. And even in my forehead."

LifeSiteNews reports that thousands of people in Sweden already have the microchips, replacing not only cash and payment cards but ID and keys.

STREET PREACHERS VINDICATED

Evangelist Hatun Tash, who frequently witnesses to Muslims at Speakers' Corner in London, has been awarded £10,000 and given an apology by the Met Police for twice arresting her.

"There is always someone who will be offended"

Tash was also stabbed in July 2021 at the same place, with no one yet charged. The apology concerns two other incidents.

Meanwhile, a street preacher who suggested Muslim prophet Mohammed was a paedophile has been found not guilty of hate speech.

Shaun O'Sullivan was arrested after passers-by told the police he was being racist by criticising Mohammed and Buddha while preaching in March 2020 in Swindon. Swindon Magistrates Court found O'Sullivan not guilty. O'Sullivan told Premier: "My intention was to tell the truth based on the evidence in the Bible and Islamic scripture, and when you do that in public there is always someone who will be offended."

He added: "Offending someone is not and never should be seen as a crime."

Hatun Tash continues to evangelise at Speakers' Corner, despite being stabbed in 2021

NEWS IN BRIEF

'BUFFER ZONES' EXTENDED ACROSS ENGLAND AND WALES

MPs have voted to ban pro-life volunteers from offering help to women outside abortion clinics across England and Wales.

Anyone breaking the law could face six months in jail for a first offence and two years for repeat offences. Stephen Green of Christian Voice calls the new law "a gross infringement on freedom of speech and freedom of assembly."

Christian pro-life group 40 Days For Life Birmingham has launched legal action against Birmingham City Council's 'buffer zone' round a clinic in Kings Norton.

Christian campaigner arrested

Caroline Farrow, CitizenGO's Campaign Director for the UK and Ireland, was arrested in October for making "malicious posts" online.

CitizenGo says the accusations are completely false. A petition in support of her can be signed at citizengo.org.

'God's smuggler' dies

Open Doors founder Brother Andrew died in September aged 94. Famous for smuggling Bibles across the Iron Curtain in his early days, the Open Doors charity went on to support thousands of persecuted Christians around the world.

GP SECURES FREEDOM TO PRAY FOR PATIENTS

Christian doctor Richard Scott challenged NHS England over its disciplinary measures for GPs who offer to pray for patients, and has reached a settlement. NHS England has agreed that Scott "may discuss spiritual care with patients".

THE SEXUAL GROOMING OF OUR CHILDREN

A group of Welsh parents has been so concerned by the RSE curriculum that they have taken their government to court.

Represented by leading human rights barrister Paul Diamond, both Christian, Muslim and non-faith parents have come together to protect their children's innocence. A verdict is due in December.

Meanwhile, actor turned politician Lawrence Fox warns that a "new wave of activists and sex-positive liberals" is aiming to "sexualise and radicalise" children in UK schools.

"We are sleepwalking into a society where woke activists posing as teachers are grooming an entire generation into degeneracy, sexualisation and depressing lifestyles," he claims.

Political commentator Calvin Robinson noted that "contested ideologies" including "critical theory, gender theory, critical race theory [and] queer theory" are now being "shovelled down kids' throats" through RSE and PSHE (Personal, Social and Health Education). "The parents' role is to pass on values. The school should... pass on knowledge, nothing more."

"Two mummies"

Elly Barnes, CEO of the LGBT charity Educate and Celebrate, speaks openly about the organisation's aim to "smash heteronormativity".

"Critical theory, gender theory, critical race theory [and] queer theory" are being "shovelled down kids' throats" – Calvin Robinson

Schools and libraries across the country are now hosting 'Drag Queen Story Hour' which involves performers in highly sexualised costumes reading to young children.

Books being used in primary schools include 'My Princess Boy', 'Heather Has Two Mummies' and 'This Day in June', which promotes pride parades and leather fetishes.

Much of the increasingly sexualised content in RSE lessons stems from the World Health Organisation's 'Standards for Sexuality Education in Europe'. This guide for educational authorities states that children aged eight to four should be informed about "enjoyment and pleasure when touching one's own body parts" and "early childhood masturbation".

Criminologist Kim Isherwood, who chairs a group of concerned parents called Public Child Protection Wales, has criticised this idea that "children are sexual from birth".

'Genderbread Person'

The 'Genderbread Person' teaching diagram differentiates between "anatomical sex", "gender identity", "gender expression" and "attraction". HEART has learned that when directors of The Values Foundation, an advocacy group,

"SLEEPWALKING INTO DEGENERACY"

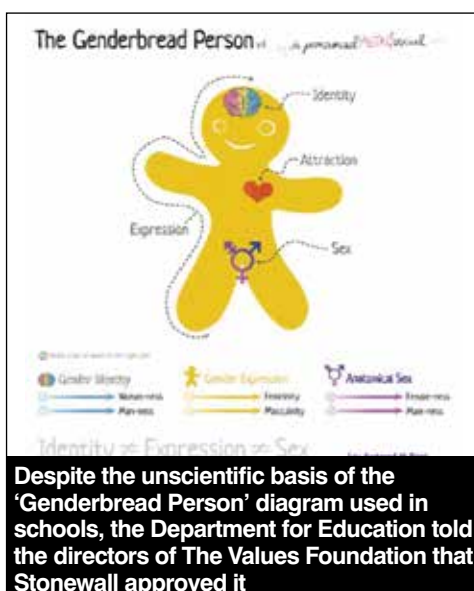

Extreme sexual behaviours, promoted by special interest groups and the WHO, no less, are being 'taught' to our children. Many of the materials used are too shocking to print here

Who knew that our classrooms have become 'grooming' centres?

So says actor and former London mayoral candidate Lawrence Fox. Now founder of the Reclaim Party, Fox was so horrified at what children were being taught about the 'birds and bees' that he made a film about it, bluntly named 'Groomed – How SCHOOLS Sexualise YOUR Children'.

And while schools have a statutory duty to consult with parents over the content of Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) lessons, in practice parents have been told that materials are copyrighted or, as in the case of the Muslim parents protesting outside a Birmingham school, threatened with arrest.

Now well-known public figures as well as parents are speaking out.

met with the Department of Education and asked for the scientific basis behind the diagram, they were simply told that the LGBT charity Stonewall approved of the resource. In October 2021, GB News reported that the BBC used the 'Genderbread Person' during a staff training session run in conjunction with Stonewall.

Trans inclusion toolkits

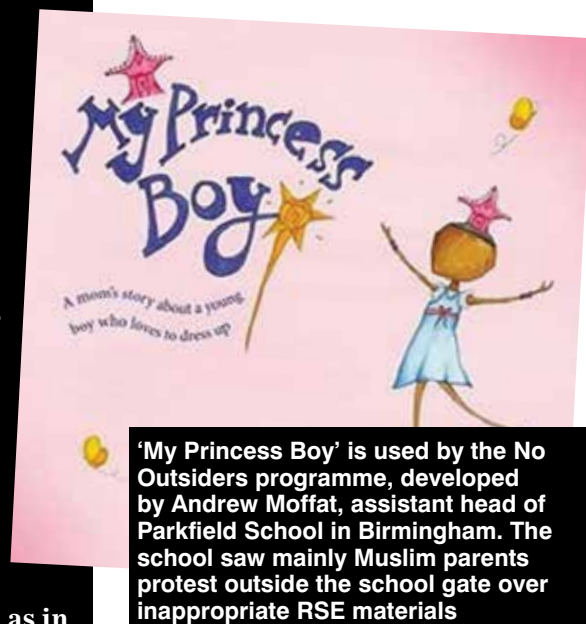

Taxpayers' money is currently funding trans lobby groups to influence schoolchildren. The Allsorts Youth Project, which helped develop a trans 'toolkit', received £287,400 in government grants in 2020. Allsorts host a monthly group for "trans and gender-exploring children of primary school age (5-11 years old)".

The 'Trans Inclusion Schools Toolkit', being piloted by Brighton City Council, allows biological boys ('trans girls') into girls' changing rooms and on residential trips. The transgender charity Mermaids made £1.85 million gross profit in 2020.

'Sex dice' game

Former biology teacher and Christian MP Miriam Cates, speaking to the BBC, noted that "children across the country are being exposed to a plethora of deeply inappropriate, wildly inaccurate, sexually explicit and damaging materials in the name of sex education."

She claimed that the "age inappropriate" resources were unsuitable to mention on air due to the BBC's broadcast rules.

During a Westminster Hall debate, Cates described examples of explicit materials, such as the Proud Trust's dice game for pupils aged 13 and over, which encourages children to roll a dice naming private body parts and sex acts. The Proud Trust had received £218,060 from government grants in 2020.

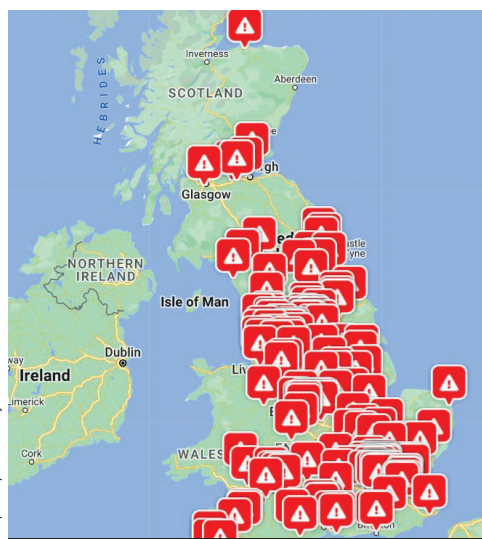

She stated: "If we fail to teach children clearly and factually about relationships, sex and the law they will be exposed to all sorts of risks..."

"Non-menstruators"

"If sex is defined as, 'anything that makes you horny or aroused' – the definition offered by the sex education provider, School of Sexuality Education – how does a child understand the link between sex and pregnancy?"

"Sex Education Forum tells children they fall into one of two groups: menstruators or non-menstruators. If a teenage girl's periods do not start, what will she think? How does she know that is not normal? How does she know to consult a doctor? How will she know she is not pregnant? Will she just assume she is one of the non-menstruators?"

The Children's Commissioner for England, Dame Rachel de Souza, has said she will investigate RSE materials further.

Clamping down?

Following the growing public outcry, the Telegraph reported that Rishi Sunak plans to "clamp down on inappropriate sex education classes in schools". This would allow parents "greater rights to request sight of the materials, even if they are provided by a commercial organisation".

The Telegraph added: "Mr Sunak also intends to look to review the Equality Act to make it clear that sex means biological sex rather than gender."

"This would mean that biological males cannot compete in women's sport and other single-sex facilities such as changing rooms and women's refuges will be protected."

"It would also mean clarifying that self-identification for transgender people does not have legal force, meaning transgender women have no legal right to access women-only facilities."

New minister, but no hope of change

Some campaigners doubt that the PM's pledge will lead to substantial change. His new education secretary, Gillian Keegan, has stated that "trans women are women".

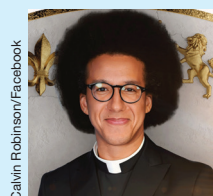

According to Christian Concern, she "has been vocal in outlining her support for LGBTQI+ rights since she assumed office in 2017". Previously, they report, she said she was 'proud' the UK is "a leader in the field of LGBTQI equality". *Lawrence Fox has produced a video critiquing RSE, available on YouTube, called '#Groomed - How SCHOOLS Sexualise YOUR Children'. The great last days money deception

The unimaginable changes that are now taking place in nearly all walks of life would have seemed pure science fiction only five years ago, but they are nevertheless taking place at record speed for all to see

I was recently invited to be a guest on Revelation TV's Late Show where the programme title was named after my 2015 book, 'The Great Last Days Money Deception'.

The hosts, Howard Condor and Nikki Mills, were particularly interested in how the book's predictions related to current events.

The big picture

I spoke about the 'big picture' – the multiplexity and convergence of world events that have taken place over the past 14 years since the global debt crisis of 2008, and particularly during the last two and a half years during the Covid saga which has resulted, I believe, in moving the world much closer to the historic return of Jesus Christ, in accordance with biblical prophecy.

What was the cause of the financial panic?

Liz Truss and Kwasi Kwarteng, our shortest serving Prime Minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer, had proposed what many considered to be utterly extreme changes to taxation involving further vast amounts of quantitative easing (money printing). This came on top of all the money printing that the current Prime Minister, Rishi Sunak, had initiated when Chancellor during the Covid crisis.

The Governor of the Bank of England, Andrew Bailey, reacted immediately and the following day The Guardian and The Daily Mail ran alarmist articles stating that the Prime Minister's proposals would have an unprecedented impact on investment markets. They anticipated the collapse of pensions which would then cause monetary chaos across the spectrum.

All major pension funds have Government Treasury Bonds forming their base of high security and a dramatic rise in interest rates always leads to increases in yields, thus causing the actual value of the bonds to fall.

Most pension fund trustees opt for a 'balanced' view of investment which attempts to achieve a 7% average return over the years, with risk spread between three categories: low, medium and high. Treasury and Corporate Bonds form the bedrock of low-risk funds but not so any more in a world of rising interest rates. The 7% per annum growth rate (medium risk) has always been used to calculate clients' eventual pensions at retirement.

These tsunamis were currently forming and would likely lead to the fall of western society

However, in the low-interest environment in which we have been living for so long, people have been lucky to see 2% to 4% returns which make pension funds potentially illiquid and subject to closure.

The eye of the storm

I explained in my book that I believed the world was, metaphorically speaking, living in the eye of a great storm that would result in a series of powerful changes that would sweep over it like giant tsunamis. These tsunamis were currently forming and would likely lead to the fall of western society.

Further, we were most probably witnessing the birth of a new world monetary system. I mentioned that Christine Lagarde, when Managing Director of the IMF (International Monetary Fund) in 2015, before she moved to be president of the European Central Bank, had gone on record saying that we would need a complete 'reset' to occur. This led to much speculation at the time as to what she meant.

However, we are finally able to see that the 'reset' to which she referred in 2015 was clearly being planned well before its official introduction by Klaus Schwab, the founder of the World Economic Forum (WEF), in July 2020.

A TSUNAMI IS COMING THAT WILL CHANGE OUR WORLD FOREVER - ARE YOU PREPARED FOR WHAT IS TO COME?

The Great Reset

Acting in partnership with over 3,000 giant corporations and in accordance with the United Nations 2030 Agenda, he announced that "the world needed a 'Great Reset'. Readers of my previous articles in this paper may recall that the then Prince Charles endorsed the online conference from Highgrove.

The entire world's systems apparently needed changing and "the Covid crisis had presented a unique opportunity" to do so. Terms like "presenting a unique opportunity" and "build back better" were immediately echoed through the media by world leaders acting in unison.

This new economic and geopolitical agenda, desired by the elites, is now coming into full view. Indeed, specific markers along the way give the game away. Firstly, the desire of governments to implement 'Covid tracking systems', secondly, the attempted enforcement of Covid passports and, thirdly, the ID 2020 proposals whose founding partners are the Gates Foundation, Gavi (The Vaccine Alliance), Microsoft, the Rockefeller Foundation and other big corporate players.

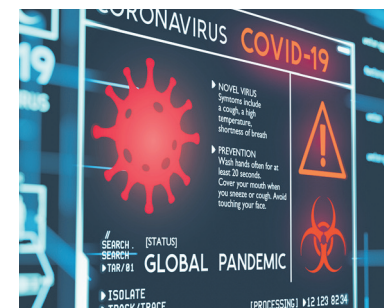

But what is the ultimate goal of these elitists? Nothing less than a utopian world with zero carbon emissions in order to satisfy their global climate change philosophy as outlined in the UN 2030 agenda.

The world is finally moving from illusion to reality

But ultimately, it is the implementation of CBDCs (Central Bank digital currencies) that would, in my opinion, lead to the fulfilment of biblical prophecy as outlined in Revelation 13. The unimaginable changes that are now taking place in nearly all walks of life would have seemed pure science fiction to the average individual only five years ago, but they are nevertheless taking place at record speed for all to see.

Their desire is to organise and control our health systems, all forms of transportation and food supply systems

The purpose of my book was to bring a warning to people of the world that we were finally facing reality, having lived in a world of illusions for so long. The changes, if implemented, would change everything we understood about how the world works.

Our understanding of what is 'normal' was a thing of the past. This was confirmed by Klaus Schwab in his 'Great Reset' speech when he stated that "it was pure fiction to think that we would return to the old normal."

The events that have taken place over the past two and a half years have demonstrated the elites' plans for a utopian ideal which is nothing less than full control over all people in a recreated world of their own imagination. A reduced population will become enslaved to their wishes through the use of artificial intelligence (AI) and digitalisation.

Their desire is to organise and control everything, including our health systems, all forms of transportation and our food supply systems thanks to the same technology that the Chinese have already implemented to control people's every move. But the most important aspect of this control is the world's money system.

The new monetary system – digital central currency – the trap!

Agustín Carstens, General Manager of the Bank of International Settlements, which oversees all the nations' central banks, said in October 2020 that Central Banks using CBDCs "will have the power to control everyone's money", preventing people from being able to buy and sell and, further, "that they will have the technology to enforce it."

Humanity as we know it is thus erased and the God of the Bible made an irrelevancy. The question is, will people see what is happening to them before it is too late and know what to do? As the saying goes, you can ignore the facts for so long but not the consequences of these facts.

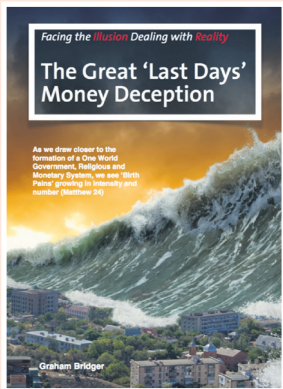

Graham Bridger's background in banking, fund management and financial strategic planning led him to begin researching the root causes of the 2008 global financial debt crisis.

In his 2018 book, 'Converging Signs and Rejection of Truth – Are We Ready for the Return of Jesus Christ?' he considers how current world events are in line with Bible prophecy, with the need to prepare for the return of Jesus Christ.

Both that and his 2015 book are available from his website, Illusion2Reality.com

When should we expect the monetary trap to be sprung?

Only the Lord knows what governments and central bankers (in particular the Bank of International Settlements) will decide to do and when.

At this stage, though, I see two things which could affect when the new monetary system takes hold.

Firstly, the Climate Change COP27 agenda has become a major focus since the new Prime Minister, Rishi Sunak, took over and announced huge tax increases to pay for the unprecedented levels of debt that have been accrued.

But now we are told that even more money would be needed to pay for 'reparation' to poorer countries who have not been able to enjoy our Western standard of living.

Judging by the volume of comments appearing online, the public is expressing considerable outrage at this outlay. Once people start to debate climate change, they are likely to agree that the massive financial assistance offered is going to mean even more tax increases, cuts in pensions and reduced income all while the cost of living rises to the point where many will be unable to survive.

It would be possible to turn people's money on and off at will if they do not comply

This is why companies like Doconomy are now promoting credit cards (called Do Black) specifically geared to managing people's carbon footprint. In practice, though, it would be possible to turn people's money on and off at will if they do not comply with the products and services that they wish to promote. Combined with the concept of CBDCs (Central Bank digital currencies), we can see how technology can control the whole money system and individuals' spending habits.

cept of CBDCs (Central Bank digital currencies), we can see how technology can control the whole money system and individuals' spending habits.

The public is realising it has been deceived by the mainstream press

Secondly, there has already been a considerable amount of "blowback" following the uncovering of events concerning the Covid lockdowns. The public is realising that it has been deceived by the mainstream press, with a greater awareness of the damage done to the economy by the policy decisions that were foisted on us all during the Covid crisis.

People are fast realising that major changes are taking place which will alter our way of life forever.

As well as the main change involving the formation of a new digital money system (CBDCs), there are the digitisation of the National Health Service, the disruption of supply chains, the destruction of fertiliser required for food production in the name of lowering CO2 and the reconstruction of economies in favour of an "Internet controlled transportation system".

All this is combined with the attempts by the World Health Organisation to gain complete control over nation states during future pandemics.

These matters are, however, mainly covered by the alternative media and completely ignored by the mainstream outlets. Yet once people are focused on their own personal circumstances and money situation, I know from experience that this will get their attention.

Indeed, it is clear from Agustín Carstens' remarks that the introduction of CBDCs is much closer than we imagined. Many involved with finance and capital have been extremely surprised by Carstens' remarks because he stated: "they will have the technology to enforce the use of CBDCs."

Other sources indicate that high-tech connections already exist between the West and China and that we are therefore sitting on the verge of the introduction of a Chinese social credit system, which can control the whereabouts of individuals and their spending patterns. It would appear that the speed by which they can introduce digital currency is drawing much closer than maybe they even intended but it would be hard to imagine that such a function would not be introduced by the end of 2023.

How can you plan financially?

Pension planning is a highly complicated area requiring a personalised financial assessment.

Those who have a faith in Jesus Christ must seek the Lord in prayer and present their circumstances openly and honestly to him for guidance.

Everyone is going to have to make different decisions and, as has been pointed out repeatedly over the last 10 to 20 years, any assets which are held in paper form have a liability against them in one form or another; the only assets that can be owned directly by individuals are those that can be held in their own possession.

For this reason, gold and silver in the form of bullion coins are being recommended as a means by which value can be held. Others still maintain that property is a useful hard asset, but unfortunately, it is clear from governmental decrees and changes in the law, that attacks can be made on personal property, including through taxation.

Clearly, we are faced with unprecedented circumstances in which many are seeking human advice. No matter how qualified a man may seem to be, the advice is likely to be shallow and probably insufficient.

There is no doubt that as we press on into the era of complete control through CBDCs, we will eventually face major problems. Lack of food and insufficient energy to keep warm are the two top methods of bringing people to heel in order to abide by the 'mark' mentioned in the Bible.

I do receive a considerable number of requests from individuals about their personal financial circumstances and how they should be advised and I always wish to help in some way. But at this stage, I feel I can only point them to the book, 'The Great Last Days Money Deception'. People can also view recent seminars I gave on this subject via my website.

We are facing circumstances that really stir up emotions

In chapter 9 I outlined some ways to 'Weather the Storm' and in chapter 10, I set out 18 different practical measures. Of course, in 2015 we were still speaking of future events, but they provided some ideas that I believe could benefit anyone wishing to get to grips with their real financial position.

But now we are facing circumstances that really stir up emotions and raise the question: "How much faith do I really have in Jesus; do I believe that he will see me through to the end?"

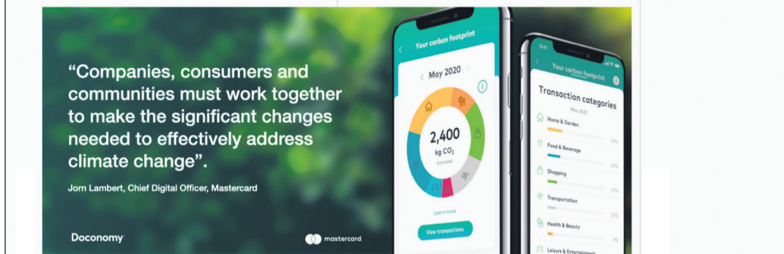

In my latest book, 'Converging Signs and Rejection of Truth – Are We Ready for the Return of Jesus Christ?' I included a chapter called 'Do we really want Jesus to return?'

I did so both because so many Christians had not been receiving teaching about his second coming for perhaps 30-40 years and also to bring people to face the facts about the life they were living.

Is life on this earth of prime importance or keeping watch for Jesus' return?

May the Lord Jesus fill us with his wisdom and give us peace as we face our own circumstances and know how to respond according to his will.

ABORTIONIST PROMOTES EUTHANASIA FOR MENTALLY ILL

In Nazi Germany, panels of medical experts approved the 'mercy killing' of people with mental health problems because they were deemed a burden to the state.

Now a Canadian doctor is suggesting euthanasia for desperate people who are mentally ill as well as the physically ill – at a time when the state mental health system is failing.

The state mental health system is failing

Suicide activist Professor Ellen Wiebe — an abortionist who began her euthanasia practice in her abortion clinic – told CTV (Canadian Television Network): "Mental illness and physical illness both can cause unbearable suffering."

A CTV programme then interviewed several Canadians with mental health issues who welcomed the proposal. And because of the terribly long wait times for mental health treatment in Canada, there is pressure for 'state-assisted suicide' as a way out.

But Dr John Maher told CTV that suicide as a solution is wrong: "The doctor is the sanitised gun."

CALIFORNIA BILL MAY OPEN DOOR TO INFANTICIDE

A controversial California pro-abortion bill that has become known as the 'infanticide bill' suffers from vague wording that may mean infanticide becomes legal.

On 27 September, California Governor Gavin Newsom signed what critics claim is a perinatal infanticide bill, AB 2223 – plus 12 other pro-abortion bills.

"California has effectively removed protections for newborns during their first 28 days"

A Christian-led legal organisation, the American Centre for Law & Justice (ACLJ), believes that AB 2223 could decriminalise infanticide. The ACLJ states that the bill "prevents coroners from investigating the deaths 'related to or following known or suspected self-induced or criminal abortion', including deaths of babies during the 'perinatal' period—which is up to 28 days after birth.

"The bill also protects individuals from criminal or civil liability for the death of an infant during the perinatal period, if the death is 'due to causes that occurred in utero'."

Thus ACLJ Chief Counsel Jay Sekulow claims that Californian law "will effectively allow a living child to die up to 28 days after birth."

When the original version of the bill was accused of allowing infanticide earlier in 2022, fact-checking organisations poured cold water on the idea, including Reuters news agency. But the ACLJ warns that "California has effectively removed protections for newborns during at least the first 28 days of their lives."

In contrast, the California Catholic Conference (CCC) believes that the revised wording of the bill "definitely closes the door on potential unintended consequences of permitting infant deaths due to abuse, neglect, or abandonment" and therefore "the CCC will be removing its opposition to AB 2223 and will remain neutral on the bill."

EU CAUGHT USING TRADE AS A POLITICAL WEAPON

Uganda has rejected the EU's attempt to make the offer of a trade agreement with Africa dependent on African countries signing up to abortion and the LGBT agenda.

Family is the core of society, says Deputy Speaker of the Ugandan Parliament, Thomas Tayebwa

Thomas Tayebwa, the Deputy Speaker of the Ugandan parliament, spoke on behalf of his country at a 29 October – 2 November summit where African, Caribbean and Pacific states met with the EU to discuss an update on the Cotonou agreement. This pact, signed in 2000, governs trade and economic relations between the EU and all 48 sub-Saharan countries in Africa, 16 Caribbean countries and 15 Pacific countries.

Tayebwa said: "We have discovered that with the Post-Cotonou agreement, there are hidden clauses concerning human rights, clauses to do with sexuality, promotion of LGBT/homosexuality and clauses to do with abortion. The EU is demanding that we take a certain route; they should also know the character of our society."

He continued: "We are not yet a society that has lost the moral compass. As Africa, we believe that the institution of the family is the core of whatever we are doing."

In October, 33 African nations rejected the United Nations statement that abortion is a "human right" that should be provided by all members. And in September, Kenya banned movies with LGBT content.

BAKERS IN COURT FOR BIBLICAL BELIEFS

A Christian baker who won a case at the US Supreme Court for refusing to make a cake for a gay wedding is back in court – this time for refusing to bake a gender transition cake.

An attorney demanded that Jack create expressive cakes to 'correct the errors' of his thinking

Jack Phillips is appealing against a 2021 Colorado court ruling that found him guilty of discrimination for refusing the transgender cake job. He argues his religious beliefs prevent him from providing the service, and wants his free speech rights to be upheld.

"No one should be forced to express a message that violates their beliefs and conscience," said Phillips' lawyer, Jake Warner, from the Christian organisation Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF).

Warner added that Phillips is being hounded by trans extremists: "An activist attorney demanded that Jack create expressive cakes to test him and 'correct the errors' of his thinking. The attorney even promised to sue Jack again if the case is dismissed for any reason."

Meanwhile, a California judge has ruled in favour of another baker who refused to make a wedding cake for a same-sex couple because it violated her Christian beliefs.

The state Department of Fair Housing and Employment had sued Cathy Miller's company, Tastries Bakery, for discrimination, and forced her to either bake same-sex wedding cakes or close down. Kern County Superior Court Judge Eric Bradshaw decided the Department was wrong and Miller had acted within her rights.

EUROPEAN COURT RULES IN FAVOUR OF ABORTION ACTIVIST WHO DEFILED CHURCH

A woman who pretended to abort the baby Jesus on the altar of a French church while semi-naked was within her rights, according to the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR).

She acted as though having an abortion

The ECHR overturned the verdicts of other French courts that had ruled against Eloïse Bouton – whose protest against Catholic pro-life beliefs interrupted a carol service rehearsal in October.

According to Premier News, the judges said Bouton was exercising “freedom of expression” when she mounted the altar in a blue veil to symbolise Christ’s mother, acted as though she was having an abortion, used pieces of animal liver to represent the destroyed foetus, and urinated on the floor.

The state must now pay Bouton’s legal costs, expenses and moral damages.

Israel’s elections: the challenges facing third-time PM Netanyahu

by Robin Benson

What Israel’s left-leaning politicians and media did not want, and campaigned so hard to prevent – cheered on by the Biden administration, the EU and their anti-Zionist collaborators – has happened.

Benjamin (Bibi) Netanyahu, the Likud Party, and their right-wing allies in the Shas, United Torah Judaism, and the Religious Zionist parties, have a large enough majority in the Knesset to form a new coalition government. Bibi returns from being Opposition leader for a second time, and will be Prime Minister for a third time in his long political career.

His coalition partners are all strong leaders with their own agendas

Netanyahu’s first challenge will be to form a coalition before 14 December (or 28 December at the very latest with a negotiating extension of two weeks). He says he wants it done before the end of November, but he has politicians in his own party, plus those in the three parties allied with him to please – and to reward for their allegiance. His coalition partners are all strong leaders with their own agendas; some overlap, and some do not. We shall see.

If and when the new coalition is in place, the challenges awaiting them are many and varied, to say the least. Here are just a few:

1. Bibi and Biden

The hostile Biden administration in Washington DC has already voiced its “concerns” about Israel’s apparent lurch to the political right, and some senior officials have even said they will not work with certain members of the new coalition. With “friends” like these...

2. Terrorism at home

There is the ongoing terrorism threat emanating from Judea and Samaria, where young Arab/Muslim men – incited to extreme violence by the terrorist Palestinian Authority, and numerous other Islamist terror groups – have been attacking Israeli security personnel and civilians at every turn.

There are calls for a much stronger response from Israel’s security forces to these attacks. But that inevitably will lead to fierce condemnation for all quarters who could not care less about more dead Jews.

3. Cancelling maritime pact could provoke Hezbollah

Then there is the recent maritime border agreement between Israel and the USA, and Lebanon and the USA. This weird arrangement is because Lebanon still does not recognise Israel’s existence. It is alleged that Israel’s signing of this was illegal because it was not presented to and endorsed by the Knesset. During election campaigning, Bibi declared he would nullify the agreement. That would have serious political and diplomatic implications, not least because the USA is the guarantor for both sides.

So, will Bibi do this and risk the security problems of a possible open conflict with Hezbollah, the Iranian-backed terrorist regime that effectively governs Lebanon?

4. Supporting Ukraine provokes Putin

Israel is also under mounting international pressure to give full military support to Ukraine in its war with Russia. Humanitarian aid shipments are apparently not enough.

But this is a complex political and diplomatic situation, whose ripples touch on Israel’s relationship with Russia itself. This is partly because Russia, while it is still to some degree propping up the Assad regime in Syria, it has also been turning a blind eye to Israel’s repeated attacks on Iranian bases and weapons supply chains in Syria.

Benjamin Netanyahu will lead his small, embattled nation for the third time as PM

So, falling out with President Putin would certainly affect Israel’s ability to effectively hamper Iranian military threats: particularly from Syria, but also from Iran’s proxies in Lebanon, Yemen, Iraq, the Gaza Strip, and more recently from Judea and Samaria. However, such a breach in Israeli-Russian relationships might also jeopardise the safety of the considerable number of Jewish people still living in both Russia and Russian-occupied Ukraine.

5. Threat from Iran’s mullahcracy

And then there is the Iranian regime itself. Although the mullahcracy seems to be fighting for its existence internally, its nuclear threat is still real. It could also do huge harm with its hundreds of ballistic missiles and thousands of unmanned aerial and precision-guided munitions.

There is more that could be added to this list of major hurdles that a new Israeli government needs to surmount. It will take the “wisdom of Solomon”, given by the God of Israel, to enable Benjamin Netanyahu and his cabinet to tackle any one of these, never mind all of them.

Is he up to that challenge? He maintains he is, but time will tell.

OFCOM SLAMS BBC OVER BIAS

Broadcast watchdog Ofcom has slammed the BBC for failing to observe its own editorial guidelines over its reporting of a December 2021 anti-Semitic attack against a bus carrying Jewish children celebrating Chanukah.

The verdict is a victory for The Jewish Chronicle, which has launched a petition calling for a parliamentary inquiry into the BBC over its coverage of Jews and Israel.

The Ofcom report also marks a win for the Board of Deputies (of British Jews), which commissioned a forensic report, dismissing the BBC claim that one of the Jewish victims of the attack had described their attackers as "dirty Muslims".

Following the Ofcom ruling, senior parliamentarians and Jewish activists have reiterated the need for a parliamentary inquiry into BBC bias over Israel.

The call for a parliamentary inquiry comes amid deep concern in the Anglo-Jewish community over a string of reporting errors by the BBC.

Ofcom's statement comes just days after the BBC issued a landmark apology in which it acknowledged years of "unacceptable" handling of complaints about anti-Israel bias in its Arabic output.

Ofcom launched an investigation into the BBC in January 2022 after the corporation released a partial apology for their reporting of the Oxford Street attack involving a busload of Jewish teenagers harassed by a group of young men who spat at their bus and chanted anti-Israel slogans.

COMEBACK VICTORY FOR NETANYAHU

Benjamin Netanyahu has won a decisive comeback victory in Israel's national elections, held for the fifth time in less than four years. His Likud party secured 32 seats in the 120-member Knesset, but a coalition with several smaller parties (Religious Zionist Party, Shas and United Torah Judaism) added up to a total of 64.

Meanwhile rumours of affiliation with Messianic Jews (Jewish followers of Jesus) among high-profile politicians were stirring on Israeli social media in the run-up to the elections. But it seems the reports are exaggerated.

It is true, however, that in 2019, Yair Netanyahu, son of Benjamin, took to Twitter to defend Jesus' true heritage when Palestinian activists tried to claim him as one of theirs. He even quoted the New Testament and, a year later, said he would like to see Europe become a stronghold of Christianity again. Then, earlier this year, he said Easter – commemorating Jesus' death, burial and resurrection – was a Jewish affair.

"IT'S TIME WE RECOGNISED JERUSALEM!"

Responding to suggestions of re-locating Britain's Israeli embassy to Jerusalem by Liz Truss, while campaigning for what turned out to be her brief role as Prime Minister, MP Robert Jenrick, now a Home Office minister, said: "It is time we took responsibility and...recognised that the true capital of the State of Israel is obviously Jerusalem."

Momentum for this outcome appears, however, to have ground to a halt since Rishi Sunak replaced her.

lessness or our greed. God sent into the world a unique person – neither a philosopher nor a general (important though they are) – but a Saviour, with the power to forgive."

It was this understanding that no doubt inspired her courageous act of forgiveness in shaking hands with ex-IRA commander Martin McGuinness, whose terrorist comrades murdered her cousin Lord Mountbatten.

The Queen also shared a long friendship with evangelist Billy Graham, who preached to the royal family on several occasions.

If you would like to share the Queen's assurance of God being with you through thick and thin, why not pray this prayer:

"Lord Jesus, I believe you can make a difference to my life, as you did for our Queen. Please forgive my sins and come into my heart. Amen."

Reminiscences of our late Queen's devotion to duty, and to God, keep coming to light. One of the first charities to which she pledged patronage after her royal accession in 1952 was the Council of Christians and Jews, founded ten years earlier in the middle of World War II by Archbishop William Temple and Chief Rabbi Joseph Hertz. Her commitment to the authority of the Bible, described at her coronation as "the most valuable thing that this world affords", was absolute, as was her faith in Jesus.

"Although we are capable of great acts of kindness," she shared with TV viewers one Christmas, "history teaches us that we sometimes need saving from ourselves – from our reck-

SUNAK CAVES IN OVER EMBASSY MOVE

Despite being described as pro-Israel, new Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has apparently caved in to pressure over the possibility of re-locating the British embassy to Jerusalem mentioned by his predecessor Liz Truss.

Truss, forced to resign from office after just 44 days, had signalled her intention to look seriously at such a move. Most embassies have remained in Tel Aviv ever since 1980 when nations were threatened with Arab oil embargoes if they recognised Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

"It has been looked at," Sunak's spokesperson stated, adding: "There are no plans to move the British embassy."

Sunak was reportedly warned that the "entire governmental system" would be in an uproar if he carried out the move.

SKELETONS COME ALIVE!

As we anticipate Holocaust Memorial Day in January, read this moving account of how three sisters survived to literally fulfil an ancient prophecy

by Charles Gardner

Fresh evidence for the absolute reliability of God's Word is now enshrined in the truly amazing testimony of three courageous Jewish sisters.

Their remarkable story – how they emerged as virtual skeletons from the Holocaust nightmare to play a key role in building modern Israel – is powerfully documented in a new book by Australian author Heather Morris, hot on the heels of her best-selling account of 'The Tattooist of Auschwitz'.

They shared beds with lice and fleas while enduring regular bouts of fever and disease

Although not aiming to back up any particular theological line, 'Three Sisters' (Zaffre, 2021) is perfect testament, in my opinion, to the veracity of Ezekiel's 2,500-year-old prophecy predicting both the Holocaust and the miraculous rebirth of Israel.

In his 'Valley of dry bones' vision, the prophet sees flesh and breath reviving skeletons and opening graves. Great men – both Christian and Jewish – have rightly interpreted Ezekiel's vision (in chapter 37) as a picture of the Shoah (Hebrew for Holocaust) and the subsequent establishment of the state of Israel in 1948. I am referring particularly to legendary Baptist preacher Charles Spurgeon and three times Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Abducted from their Slovakian home, lively teenagers Cibi and Livi Meller (Magda was only captured later) were sent to Auschwitz-Birkenau where they lived out miserable lives on starvation rations while being forced into hard labour for long hours over the next three years.

Sharing beds with lice and fleas while enduring regular bouts of fever and disease, they were reduced to skeletons, in daily fear of not knowing whether they would live or die. And after over two years of being separated from their mother and grandfather, they were only able to catch a brief glimpse of them as they were marched directly from the train platform to the gas chamber. It was a living nightmare and Livi, the youngest, cried herself to sleep for ten years afterwards.

It's a story of heartbreak and horror, yet also of profound hope and redemption. I wonder if we have ever truly considered the pain these Jewish people went through.

The sisters eventually escaped the jaws of death to start a new life in the Promised Land. On their return from the camps, they discovered their home had been stolen from them, that anti-Semitism was still alive, and that they had fled one prison, only to be trapped in another, as communism had filled the vacuum left by the retreating Nazis in Eastern Europe.

In many ways, their story is a fulfilment of Ezekiel's aforementioned prophecy. Cibi and Livi, who had learnt the art of construction from their Nazi tormentors as they were forced to build new barracks, were able to put this to good use as, with their bare hands, they helped to create the Jewish homeland within a few short years of their liberation. It was reminiscent of Joseph's experience in ancient Egypt, where he saved his people from famine despite being cruelly treated by his brothers, telling them: "You intended to harm me, but God intended it for good to accomplish what is now being done, the saving of many lives." (Genesis 50:20)

Livi took her place as maid to the wife of Israel's first president, Chaim Weizmann

The Meller sisters endured the curse of hell before becoming part of the resurrection experience of modern Israel, marrying and having children as they blessed the new land with their love and labours.

I pray their story will stir hearts afresh with a love and tenderness for the Jewish people. I was encouraged by the reference to Christians helping to train would-be immigrants for the rigours of cultivating near-virgin territory

With their bare hands, they helped to create the Jewish homeland because they understood God's plans for Israel's restoration. Would that Christians everywhere were as keen to back the Jewish state, surrounded on every side by enemies wishing their destruction!

When her sister Magda fell pregnant, Livi took her place as maid to the wife of Israel's first president, Chaim Weizmann. From being a mere number among millions of despised prisoners, they were elevated to dizzy heights – again akin to Joseph's experience in becoming Prince of Egypt after all his troubles.

In fact, both Jew and Gentile collaborated in promoting the dream of a revived Jewish homeland. One of Israel's greatest pioneering heroes, Weizmann played a particularly significant role in befriending evangelical Christian politician Arthur Balfour, whose subsequent declaration of solidarity with Zionism was the defining moment of Israel's rebirth, though its full restoration has yet to be fully realised. The physical land has been resettled, but Israelis are not yet reconnected (as a nation) with their Lord and Messiah, Jesus the Jew, who will soon reveal himself to his long-lost brothers, as Joseph did of old.

A short railway track reminds visitors to the National Holocaust Centre and Museum of the infamous one-way railway to Auschwitz.

Affectionately known as Beth Shalom ('House of Peace'), the Centre was founded in 1995 by James and Stephen Smith, with their mother, Marina. Four years earlier, they had visited Yad Vashem, Israel's national Holocaust museum, and were so moved that they decided to dedicate their lives to Holocaust education in the UK, starting the Centre in their own home, which has since been enlarged and renovated.

Blood, sweat and Jesus

How a physiotherapist from London has seen miracles of faith and healing in sub-Saharan Africa

by Charles Gardner

When reading how Jesus told his disciples to proclaim the Gospel to the ends of the earth, a young lady from north London took him at his word.

But she could never have imagined what an amazing adventure it would be. And she is still there after 24 years!

Kerry Stillman found herself in the heart of sub-Saharan Africa, using her skills as a physiotherapist to bring healing and hope to a people as yet largely unreached with the Christian message.

Based at a Christian hospital in north Cameroon, she became part of a multi-national (and non-denominational) team offering medical – and sometimes miraculous – solutions to the Fulbe (also known as Fulani) tribe.

As if the harsh, hot and dusty conditions – along with the difficulties of language – are not challenging enough, the work has also been hampered by the incursion of terrorist activity in the area.

Extended families have come together after having dreams of Jesus

A gentle, gracious and unhurried people, the Fulbe are mostly Muslim. But many are now following Jesus. And it's not always the case that they first hear about him through the missionaries.

Extended family groups, even across the border into Chad, have come together after having dreams of Jesus, asking Kerry and her colleagues to teach them more about the faith.

As a result, a young man called Mohammed, whom Kerry introduced to Jesus four years ago, has since visited several of these groups feeding their hunger to know more about this wonderful person who appeared to them in their sleep.

However, some of the converts have paid a great price for their commitment to Christ, with family often disowning them and, in one case, a Fulbe believer lost his 11-year-old son after he was brutally attacked for his father's faith.

Many have come to faith as a direct result of their stay at the hospital, where they are treated for TB, malaria and sometimes horrible injuries through road accidents, often necessitating long stays with family members camping on the compound to keep vigil over their loved one.

Seeing the power of prayer amidst a heavy workload: this was Kerry Stillman in 2021

The loving care shown by staff both to patients and their families has made a deep impact on the community. The hospital workers have committed to a 'prayer round' when every patient is prayed for.

Once a member of staff dutifully prayed for all those in a children's ward who were suffering terribly with malaria and were not expected to survive the night. He was rather exhausted and disheartened by the time he had finished, but there were smiles all round next day – both from the children and their mothers – as God had clearly worked a miracle.

"This act of simply offering to pray for a sick person has often led to many deeper conversations and opened the door for questions of faith to be asked," Kerry explains in her book 'Blood, Sweat and Jesus'.

One teacher of the Qur'an was so struck by the improvement he felt as a result of the prayer that, on his return home, he started to teach his students from the Gospel of Matthew he was given.

A businesswoman who developed cancer symptoms but left it too late for effective surgery, told of a dream in which she saw a dark man who did not bring her peace, but then saw a bright, shining man who came and sat with her, and did bring her peace.

Kerry wrote: "It has been our experience over the years that many Muslims are having dreams in which they meet a man like this who is bright and shining. Often, they can't see his facial features, but his presence and words bring comfort, peace, strength and life; the conclusion of most is that this is Jesus Christ."

One young woman, Samira, appeared to be at death's door, suffering from TB as well as being HIV positive. But as her relationship with Jesus developed, she made an amazing recovery, enabling her to watch her children grow up, and even to see her grandchildren.

He no longer needed a tricycle – he was now able to walk!

A fisherman became paralysed and unable to walk after being struck with TB in the spine. Moved to pray for his complete recovery, a hospital worker called on him to 'rise up and walk' in the way Jesus' disciples had done for a cripple as recorded in the Bible (Acts chapter 3).

As her relationship with Jesus developed, she made an amazing recovery

It didn't happen there and then, to the great disappointment of all concerned, but he returned to the hospital a couple of years later to share the joyful news that he no longer needed the tricycle he was given – he was now able to walk!

One of the hugely effective tools used by staff has been in showing the 'Jesus' film, based on Luke's Gospel, which has opened many eyes to the truth.

Sometimes the severity of a patient's condition is beyond the capacity of the hospital to deal with, and funds are raised through Christian supporters to send them elsewhere for expert care – usually to the UK or South Africa.

A smiling Kerry with one of her patients

Kerry herself had to be flown back to England for emergency treatment when she nearly died of a virus that caused temporary paralysis, though in her case she was covered by medical insurance.

Another extraordinary story involved a baby called Jesus ('Iisa' in Arabic) born out in the bush without an anal opening. He was sent to a bigger hospital where he received reconstructive surgery, and grew up to be a lovely, healthy boy – and a constant reminder to his family of the Jesus who had brought them so much hope.

Meanwhile, a pregnant woman's serious pelvic condition looked like being a dangerous impediment to giving birth but, following prayer for a miracle, the baby was delivered normally!

Clearly, Kerry and her colleagues have a great love for these people as they sensitively, but intentionally, point their patients to the ultimate healer.

If you are not a believer and want to know what true Christianity is about, then read this book. If you are already a believer, it will challenge and inspire you to greater heights of faith and adventure.

CHRISTIANITY AND... CLIMATE CHANGE

So-called renewable energies, along with net zero policies, are a catastrophically expensive, unnecessary and destructive scam that will keep hundreds of millions in poverty, not lift them out of it, says James Smith

In 'The Screwtape Letters', C S Lewis warned about "Christianity and ...", where Christians add things to the Gospel and make them central.

That's what's happened with man-made climate change; essentially it is a lie based on an atheistic, evolutionary, uniformitarian world view that rejects what Genesis teaches about the beginning of this planet and what Revelation teaches about the end.

Seeing Christians being deceived and tossed to and fro by the lie of climate change is the inevitable consequence of first rejecting the biblical account of creation:

"... that we should no longer be children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the trickery of men, in the cunning craftiness by which they lie in wait to deceive, but, speaking the truth in love, may grow up in all things into him who is the head—Christ" (Ephesians 4:14-15).

Lord Acton warned, "Official truth is not actual truth" and George Orwell observed, "Political language ... is designed to make lies sound truthful and murder respectable, and to give an appearance of solidity to pure wind".

The "official truth" is humanity's abuse of the planet has caused a climate emergency that demands immediate action to save it; a claim that's "pure wind". The actual truth is that there's no climate emergency but it's politically expedient to scare us into believing there is.

A UN plan for the global control of energy, water, food resources, land, mineral resources and human beings

Why? Because, as we've seen with Covid, people will willingly surrender both money and freedom to central government control when they've been injected with enough fear.

Environmental movement

Rather than being a grassroots initiative, the environmental movement originated with the Club of Rome, a "think tank" formed in 1968 at David Rockefeller's private estate in Bellagio, Italy. The aim was to formulate a crisis that could be used as a Trojan Horse to convince the world of the need for a One World Government.

Their intentions were outlined in 'The First Global Revolution – A Report by the Council of the Club of Rome'. In chapter 5, titled 'The Vacuum', under a sub-heading of 'The Common Enemy of Humanity Is Man', it states:

"In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill ... All these dangers are caused by human intervention and it is only through changed attitudes and behaviour that they can be overcome. The real enemy, then, is humanity itself" (page 115).

Maurice Strong, a key member of the Club of Rome, played a central role in globalising the political language of the environmental movement, giving it the appearance of solidity, and weaving it into world government policy through the United Nations (UN). He stood behind the shoulder of every UN Secretary General since U Thant in the early 1960s; his roles within the UN are too numerous to list.

COP, the annual global climate summit of 197 nations, is a UN initiative; it provides the single largest geo-political forum for nations to come together with one goal.

Strong was a Foundation Board member of the World Economic Forum (WEF), the globalist cabal responsible for the coming 'Great Reset' where "you'll own nothing and be happy". Upon Strong's death in 2015, Executive Chairman of the WEF, Klaus Schwab, described him as "My mentor since the creation of the Forum: a great friend; an indispensable adviser and ... without him, the Forum would not have achieved its present significance".

PEOPLE WILL WILLINGLY SURRENDER BOTH MONEY AND FREEDOM TO CENTRAL GOVERNMENT CONTROL WHEN THEY'VE BEEN INJECTED WITH ENOUGH FEAR

Strong was central to the 1997 Kyoto Treaty, from which the UN's Agenda 21 emerged. This is a UN plan for the global control of energy, water, food resources, land, mineral resources and human beings; subsequently in September 2015 it became Agenda 2030 with the WEF at the forefront of its goal of reducing CO2 emissions to zero by the year 2030.

Fear campaign

With the long-term agenda of a One World Government established, the fear campaign began.

Back in the 70s, we were warned of a coming new ice age if we didn't surrender our money and freedom. Then in the 80s, we were threatened with death by ozone hole if we didn't surrender our money and freedom, and then destruction by acid rain if we didn't surrender our money and freedom.

By the time they started warning we would end up either on fire or under water from global warming, they had cried wolf once too often; I was still looking forward to enjoying more frequent white Christmases from the coming ice age.

In the 2006 film, 'An Inconvenient Truth', Al Gore cried wolf that humanity had only ten years left before the world would reach the point of no return.

In 2009, (then) Prince Charles cried wolf that we had only eight years to save the world from irreversible climate and eco-system collapse.

All the false Canidae tears finally let the cat out of the bag that the globe isn't actually warming. However, rather than admit the game was up, the bag was quickly relabelled "climate change", a fiendishly clever, more inclusive term allowing any and all extreme weather events to be blamed on humanity.

Any hot spell, cold spell, drought or flood, is all stuffed in the bag labelled climate change and blamed on humanity. The unfortunate moggy of truth was quickly rustled back in the bag and hasn't been seen since. If you try hard enough, you may occasionally hear it whimpering to get out, but as far as mainstream media is concerned, the cat never even existed.

Thank God for CO2!

We've been sold the lie that CO2 is a dangerous 'greenhouse gas', a term invented to describe a gas that keeps heat in the atmosphere, like a greenhouse keeps heat in (water vapour is also classed as a 'greenhouse gas'). Any gardener will tell you that when CO2 is pumped into a greenhouse, it increases both the size and yield of plants.

Rather than being a pollutant, CO2 is a plant food essential to all life on earth and the ecosystem God created; photosynthesis is just one of his blessings.

The truth is that anthropogenic climate change and the control of CO2 is deeply rooted in a radical, misguided and ultimately devilish campaign to reduce the world's population. As the Club of Rome declared, "The real enemy, then, is humanity itself".

Religious fervour

Spirituality is central to the environmental movement, but not Christian spirituality. It's a pagan New Age spirit directing the religious fervour of the environmental movement.

The World Economic Forum's 'Great Reset' initiative aims to move humanity towards its prediction that by 2030, "You'll own nothing. And you'll be happy" (video available on weforum.org)

Returning to Mt. Sinai: An Interfaith Climate Repentance Ceremony

EXPLORE MORE

Religious trappings: At an Interfaith Climate Repentance Ceremony held on Mount Sinai on 13 November to coincide with COP27, Israeli activist Yosef Abramowitz symbolically smashed two tablets. Then the new 'Ten Principles for Climate Repentance', a document drafted by dozens of multifaith leaders in London, was read out, according to The Times of Israel

This is well demonstrated by the fact that in 1988, Strong and his wife, Hanne, created the New Age Manitou Centre on their ranch in Colorado in order to promote Gaia worship and (according to the official website) "create a sustainable inter-faith community".

And we've just seen an inter-faith 'ceremony of repentance' take place at COP27 – this has nothing to do with repentance for our personal sins, but for our 'sins' against the environment.

Not-so renewable

Rather than renewable energies such as wind and solar being a no-brainer, they are a complete non-starter, in respect of cost, efficiency, sustainability because they can contain lead, cadmium and chromium that aren't renewable and never lose their toxicity.

In the pursuit of "net zero" emissions, internal combustion engines are being phased out and replaced with electric vehicles (EVs). However, in addition to there being no national grid on the planet capable of supporting such a flight of fantasy, there isn't enough lithium to produce the volume of batteries needed. There's a finite number of EVs that can be produced and if you're not fortunate enough to own one before the combustion engine is abolished, you'll be relying on public transport to go anywhere.

doesn't exist. This 'solution' will allow the few to own everything and rule the many who will own nothing; this New World Order will culminate in one man ultimately ruling all (Revelation 13:5).

The climate has been under constant change ever since the most cataclysmic weather event took place, which is recorded in Genesis chapter 7 and concludes with God making a promise at the end of chapter 8:

"Then the Lord said in his heart, 'I will never again curse the ground for man's sake, although the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; nor will I again destroy every living thing as

THE EARTH WILL REMAIN UNTIL CHRIST'S SECOND COMING, THE EVENT THAT CONCLUDES HUMAN HISTORY AND THE WORLD AS WE KNOW IT, NOT A MAN-MADE CLIMATE EMERGENCY IN THE MEANTIME

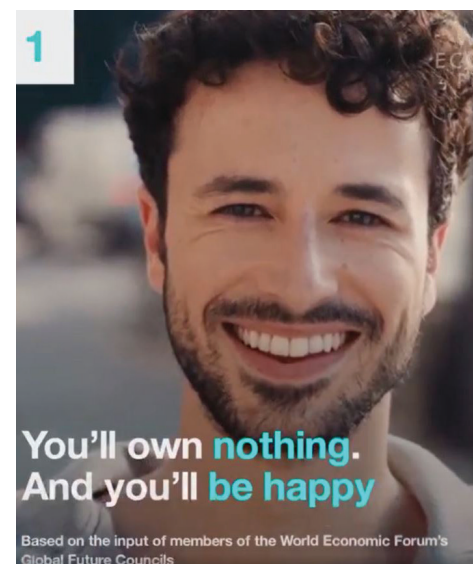

But it gets worse. Bearing in mind the limited lifespan of EV batteries (and their limited recycling possibilities), even those wealthy enough to own an EV now won't be able to buy a replacement once the lithium runs out (not to mention other key components such as cobalt).

But that's what globalist organisations like the WEF want: "You'll own nothing and be happy!"

So-called renewable energies, along with net zero policies, are a catastrophically expensive, unnecessary and destructive scam that will keep hundreds of millions in poverty, not lift them out of it; the only thing that will be net zero will be people's bank balances.

Making energy more expensive, less efficient and less available for those parts of the world still aspiring to the quality of life we've taken for granted since the Industrial Revolution is neither loving our neighbour as ourselves, nor being a faithful steward of the natural resources God has blessed us with. How is it "Christian" to deny someone less fortunate something we've benefited from and taken for granted?

Christians are called to be ambassadors for Christ, not woke social justice warriors. We shouldn't be enthusiastically draping a flag of "Christian love" over the Trojan Horse of environmentalism because it is being used to deceive the world into embracing a global solution, ultimately a One World Government, to solve a problem that I have done. While the earth remains, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, winter and summer, and day and night shall not cease."

The earth will remain until God says so, and until then we'll continue to have various weather events, some extreme and some less so. It will remain until Christ's Second Coming, the event that concludes human history and the world as we know it, not a man-made climate emergency in the meantime.

Humanity is capable of polluting this planet (and we should be good stewards of it), but not changing the climate. That power is for the Creator only.

It's Christ, the "firstborn over all creation" who upholds this world (Colossians 1:15-17; Hebrews 1:1-3). It's hubris to presume that humanity's emission of a (God-given) "greenhouse gas" has a stronger impact on the world than Christ's ability to uphold it!

We're not on the brink of destroying a world that's being upheld by our Lord and Saviour, but we are on the brink of having a One World Government. The Bible teaches (in Daniel 2 and 7) that, as part of a One World Government, the world will be divided into ten regions ("kingdoms") of rule.

The plan to divide the world into ten regions under a One World Government is a solution that's been looking for a problem to solve for decades, and the lie of man-made climate change could be that problem. The Club of Rome proposed the introduction of a new global order in 1972, with the world divided into ten economic trading blocks. Just a coincidence?

Today, the European Commission (EC) website has a very similar world map showing ten groups of nations, designed to consolidate regional control. The EC is the executive branch of the EU, responsible for legislation, implementing decisions, upholding EU treaties and managing the day-to-day business of the EU.

In conclusion, "Christianity and ..." isn't Christianity at all; it's a form of carnal Christianity that's conforming to this world (Romans 12:2). Focus for the Christian should be on worshipping our Creator, not his Creation; on saving souls, not the planet, and looking up for his return, not down toward earth.

We should be obedient to the Great Commission: "Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptising them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age" (Matthew 28:19-20).

This is how we save the world, one life at a time.

God's not yet done with this world and he decides when it's over, not us.

New PM Rishi Sunak has refused to commit the UK to potentially crippling 'loss and damage' payments to compensate developing countries for 'extreme weather' events ostensibly caused by man-made climate change.

According to the Daily Sceptic, the "transparent scam" involves calls for countries that led the way in fossil fuel usage to redress some $1 trillion in global climate change costs. Ludicrously, China is among the countries asking for recompense. Daily Sceptic founder Toby Young suggests that developing nations "should be thanking us. Not asking us for compensation."

COUP LEADER VOWS TO DRIVE OUT ISLAMISTS

The new president of Burkina Faso has warned that the nation's existence is threatened by Islamic jihadists.

Army Captain Ibrahim Traoré, who ousted his predecessor in a coup in September, said: "We are confronted with a security and humanitarian crisis without precedent."

"Burkina's existence is in danger"

Traoré, 34, who was sworn in as interim president on 21 October, continued: "Our aims are none other than the re-conquest of territory occupied by these hordes of terrorists. Burkina's existence is in danger."

Traoré's coup was the second in a year, after Burkina Faso's last elected president, Roch Kaboré, was forced out in January 2022. Both coups arose because of the failure of the previous re-

Nigeria

88 Christians killed in one month

The massacre of Christians in Nigeria continues unabated.

In October alone, at least 88 have died. In a village in Benue State in central Nigeria, Fulani herdsmen killed over 70 Christians. In Obi County and Keana County in north-central Nigeria, Islamic extremists killed 15 Christians. A further three died in an attack on a village in Chibok County, north-east Nigeria. Many more people were wounded and displaced from their homes, and their villages burned.

According to Open Doors' 2022 World Watch List report, Nigeria led the world in Christians killed for their faith at 4,650 last year, up from 3,530 the previous year.

Ukraine

Russians close Ukrainian churches

Russian and pro-Russian forces have been closing churches and arresting pastors in areas of Ukraine invaded by Russia.

Churches closed include the three largest evangelical Protestant churches in Melitopol and others in Mariupol. According to Release International, pro-Russian soldiers are reported to have stated that only Orthodox Christianity was allowed.

At Grace Baptist Church in Melitopol, Russian soldiers shut down the church in the middle of a service on 11 September. Voice of the Martyrs Korea reported that the worship was stopped, the congregation had to give their names, a number of leaders were arrested and Pastor Mikhail Brisyn was given 48

Iran

TWO CHRISTIANS RELEASED BUT TWO ARRESTED

Two Christians have walked free from the infamous Evin Prison in Tehran after pardons were first denied and then granted.

Imprisoned for their church leadership roles, Pastor Naser Navard Goltapeh and a woman, Fariba Dalir, were released a few days after a fire broke out in the prison in October. Both Christians had served over a third of their sentences, and under Iranian law were eligible for early release, but no reason was given. Both had spent time in solitary confinement.

A Middle East Concern expert said: "We know that various bodies, the UK government and the UN, were advocating for Pastor Goltapeh's release, and we know that Evin Prison is hosting protestors and running out of space, but we don't know what made [President] Khamanei do this."

Ahmadi is serving an eight-year sentence for allegedly leading a house church

Meanwhile, Iran has given harsh sentences to a Christian couple. Homayoun Zhavah and his wife Sara Ahmadi were detained in August in Evin Prison, notorious for its brutality.

Both have been imprisoned before. Ahmadi is serving an eight-year sentence for allegedly leading a house church, and Zhavah is serving two years for membership of a house church.

Middle East Concern has requested prayer for a review of their sentences and that they will be acquitted, especially since Zhavah, 63, is in poor health.

A UK government report recently highlighted the persecution of Christians in Iran. "Simply being a Christian is enough to get you arrested", the study noted. Titled, 'Country policy and information note: Christians and Christian converts, Iran, September 2022 (accessible)', it can be read at www.gov.uk.

Vietnam and Laos

New believers persevere despite persecution

The Sacred Heart Cathedral, also called Vientiane Cathedral, a Roman Catholic cathedral in the city of Vientiane, the capital of Laos

New Christians in Vietnam and Laos are bravely refusing to deny Jesus despite opposition, according to the Open Doors mission.

A single mother from a tribal Hmong background became a Christian in Vietnam this summer after hearing about the faith from a friend. Neighbours said she must renounce her new faith or be thrown out of the village. Hoa* said: "I will follow my Lord who forgave my sins. I will accept any cost because of my new-found faith."

Hoa and her daughter had to leave but have found temporary shelter in another village. An Open Doors local partner is providing food.

"I will follow my Lord who forgave my sins"

In Laos, a father and son have been imprisoned for refusing to deny their faith. In 2021, Sonexay* left the animist religion to follow Jesus. The village chief told Sonexay to return to animism or he would be arrested and his family forced to leave. Sonexay refused and, after two failed attempts to arrest him, the police finally imprisoned him and his 19-year-old son.

Both were later released after the intervention of other local believers.

OH DEAR – NEW GOVERNMENT DEPT 'ODIA' TO BRING IN DIGITAL IDS

The UK is moving ever closer to a national digital ID system, with new legislation being proposed by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

According to Forbes, "The new digital ID will allow people to prove who they are for everything from moving home or starting a new job to showing they're over 18 to buy a drink. It will be available via a phone app or website and can be used in-person or online."

The ID system – which the Government assures people will be entirely optional – would be presided over by a new governing body called the Office for Digital Identities and Attributes (ODIA). Critics are already expressing concerns about privacy and security.

Oxford's '15-minute city' plan has coercive edge

Planners in Oxford intend to split the city into six districts, each with basic amenities within walking distance, in order to reduce car traffic and help the environment. People will be able to drive freely around their own neighbourhood but would need a permit to drive into a different district, with anyone exceeding 100 such visits in a year receiving a fine of £70.

Spiked commentator James Woudhuysen describes the plans as "madness" and "a coercive drive to put motorists on a leash".

In a move seemingly contradictory to Brexit, the UK will officially join the EU's Permanent Structured Cooperation (PESCO) on military mobility, after its application was approved in mid-November. DELUGE OF NEW 'HATE SPEECH' REGULATIONS

New hate speech laws are in the offing in New Zealand, specifically targeting social media. Ireland recently introduced similar legislation, which leaves the definition of 'hate speech' hazy and open to interpretation.

This comes as Canada's Online Streaming Act, known as Bill C-11, reaches its final stages. The bill will give Trudeau's Government unprecedented power to regulate what people can and cannot watch online. Likewise, the WHO has been working with Google and YouTube to 'certify' and promote medical professionals who adhere to WHO guidelines and suppress others who don't.

Banks are being encouraged by the Government to integrate 'carbon footprint trackers' into their apps and online systems, to persuade consumers to change their purchasing habits in line with the net zero agenda. JONATHAN WEISSMAN DELVES INTO THE MURKY SCIENCE BEHIND THE COVID VIRUS AND VACCINES

WHAT WE SHOULD HAVE BEEN TOLD

For well over a year now, I've been speaking out to warn the UK Church and beyond about the risks and harms of the novel Covid-19 experimental vaccines.

This September, I had the privilege of speaking at a special Lord's Work Trust conference in Belfast, Northern Ireland. The other speakers were Luke Barker (LWT), medical consultant Dr Mark Bell and Reverend Paul Dowling, who covered biblically-based ethics and theology in the face of the pandemic.

I delivered a presentation conveying the kind of data and studies our Government should have required before everyone was asked (or coerced) to roll up their sleeve for an injection. With fully informed consent, I cannot imagine most people would be so willing to volunteer all over again.

Smoke and mirrors on viral origins

Given the enormity of the events of the last few years, a critical question to ask is: where did the virus behind this Covid-19 disease come from? Once dismissed as a conspiracy theory, the prospect that SARS-CoV-2 emerged in 2019 from the Wuhan Institute of Virology (WIV) has gained increasing support.

At the same time, not a shred of evidence has been found to confirm that SARS-CoV-2 crossed over from animals to humans. Not even one confirmed instance of an animal being infected with SARS-CoV-2 existed prior to the first officially documented human cases. What's more, the virus bears a fingerprint in its genome that points towards deliberate human manipulation.

The clue that the virus is man-made is an inexplicable little genetic insert bridging the two halves of the virus's spike protein. This genetic insert is called a 'cleavage site'; it must be broken for the virus to efficiently infect human lung cells. Crucially, the cleavage site is missing in all the bat coronaviruses thought to be the ancestor of SARS-CoV-2.

So where did it come from? Funnily enough, in the years prior to the pandemic, tens of millions of dollars of US federal taxes were funnelled through US federal agencies to EcoHealth Alliance, an NGO ostensibly claiming to prevent pandemics, which has historically enjoyed a close partnership with the WIV.

The data our Government should have required before everyone was asked (or coerced) to roll up their sleeve for an injection

In 2018 EcoHealth Alliance's president, Peter Daszak, applied for funding from DARPA, the US Department of Defense's futuristic research department, to deliberately introduce "human-specific cleavage sites" into bat coronaviruses. The proposal even included plans to experiment with MERS, a coronavirus with a mortality rate of up to 35% of confirmed cases.

Absurdly, Peter Daszak later joined The Lancet's investigation into the virus's origin, which initially folded due to his conflicts of interest.

Obviously, the so-called 'lab leak' theory of the virus's origin can no longer be dismissed as conspiratorial. For years, US experts like Ralph Baric have conducted or overseen gain-of-function virology research (where viruses are deliberately enhanced to become more infectious or deadly) to create chimeric viruses from different coronavirus strains, despite the White House explicitly outlawing much of this research. Its risks are self-evident, but it is worth remembering that much of virology research is also deeply unethical, frequently involving cultivating viruses in human foetal cell lines, genetically modifying animals and deliberately sacrificing those same animals.

Disturbing vaccine science

Let's move now from the disturbing origins of Covid-19 to the even more disturbing development of the Covid vaccines.

Conventional drugs and vaccines are centred around active pharmaceutical ingredients intended to exert some kind of therapeutic effect. However, the mRNA Covid-19 vaccines are far from conventional, as the recipient's own cells must first translate the mRNA into spike protein molecules in order to trigger an immune response. Because of this mechanism, mRNA 'vaccines' are better described as 'prodrugs'.

(Devizes) argued that “across the general population, it is plausible...that the vaccine is responsible for more harms than we know about.”

He lambasted the Government's vaccine programme for its lack of transparency, and for shaming and suppressing dissent, as “unhelpful or even immoral”. (Source: The Daily Sceptic)

MP Andrew Bridgen asked: “What is the Government's analysis of the excess deaths that we are suffering in this country, across Europe and in the Americas? Even a casual glance at the data shows a strong correlation between vaccine uptake and the excess deaths in those regions. Surely we must have an investigation. Tens of thousands more people than expected are dying.”

He continued, “This is really important, and if we do not get it right, no one will believe us, and trust in politicians, in medicine and in our medical system will be lost.”

JANUARY IS COVID VACCINE VICTIM AWARENESS MONTH

The new year will see a campaign of community outreach, social media action and protest marches in London and elsewhere to help raise public awareness about those injured and bereaved by the Covid vaccines. Details at www.covileaks.co.uk (also on Telegram).

EXCESS DEATHS CRISIS

Unexpected deaths in England and Wales continue to surge well above average, having risen sharply in April 2022 and stayed high, topping 23,000 at the end of October.

The Daily Sceptic's Will Jones wrote on 10 November: “The excess deaths crisis continues, with 1,232 excess deaths – 12.3% above the five-year average – registered in England and Wales in the week ending 28 October 2022, according to the ONS. Of these, 804 were attributed to an underlying cause other than COVID-19, bringing the total excess non-Covid deaths since the wave began in April (2022) to 23,287.”

Media reports blame NHS backlogs and lack of access to healthcare, with the press finally starting to acknowledge the collateral damage of lockdowns – while NHS and Government leaders remain notably quiet.

Medics and scientists are also pointing to the Covid vaccines as a major factor in Britain's excess deaths crisis. The Daily Sceptic and UK Column have published graphs showing a “striking correlation”

PHILOSOPHY OF SCIENCE

alltherisks.com

While the active ingredients of a traditional vaccine can be thoroughly characterised through intensive testing, this is simply not possible with a prodrug. We do not know the exact proteins synthesised in the body by the mRNA translation process.

What we do know is that the pharmaceutical companies deliberately modified the mRNA in the Covid-19 vaccines, to stabilise it and increase its productivity. One of these modification techniques involved deliberately mutating the mRNA genetic code, a practice assumed to be ‘silent’ (risk-free) until recently.

We now know that this technique alters the way that mRNA molecules and their synthesised protein molecules take shape and become functional (a process known as ‘folding’). Messing around with this process is dangerous: misshapen protein molecules have long been suspected as being a key driver of neurodegenerative disorders, such as Alzheimer's disease.

Of course, all this begs the question why technology with so many unknowns and potential dangers has been installed in the name of public health. The Government hasn't ceased to tell us the dangers of Covid-19 disease, so why are they so hesitant to relate vaccine adverse reactions to the plausible causative agent, the mRNA-induced spike protein?

Genetic concerns

Another study found that, within six hours, Pfizer's mRNA converted back to DNA, a process termed ‘reverse transcription’. The results suggest spike protein genes may become integrated into the chromosome of any cell that takes up the vaccinal mRNA.

While many scientists stress that vaccinal mRNA rapidly degrades following injection, those cells that have been permanently genetically altered in this way may manufacture the spike protein indefinitely. Such changes may even be passed on to daughter cells, further amplifying the effect. The mRNA modification ‘hacks’ described above are also likely to increase the risk of this phenomenon occurring.

Despite all of these concerns, Melissa J Moore, Chief Scientific Officer of Moderna, boasted in an April 2022 TED talk that their synthetic mRNA was designed in “one hour”. Is it morally responsible to brag about speedy science, without in any way accounting for how this science may inflict harm?

Foetal cell lines minefield

A further problem surrounds the manufacture and testing of the Covid-19 vaccines using the immortalised HEK-293 cell line, the ultimate product of a series of experiments on aborted human babies. While the ethics of this issue have been downplayed by many Christians, there is also an important scientific dimension.

A peer-reviewed German study found the AstraZeneca vaccine is massively contaminated with more than 1,000 human proteins synthesised from the HEK-293 cell line. Such impurities are present at levels hundreds of times higher than permitted by the European Medicines Regulator or claimed by AstraZeneca. They pose serious safety risks, as these proteins may stimulate a strong immune response.

Acknowledging vaccine harms

The prevailing medical narrative still argues that adverse reactions to the Covid jabs are rare and that the ‘vaccines’ are “safe and effective”. But their speed-of-light development means that we are without any long-term safety data.

According to Dr Eric Rubin, voting member of FDA vaccine advisory committee on approving Pfizer's product for children aged 5-11, “We're never going to learn about how safe this vaccine is unless we start giving it. That's just the way it goes.”

As successive vaccine doses have been rolled out, a number of safety signals have become apparent (for those willing to see them!). For example, a recent Thai study on 301 adolescents receiving two Pfizer doses recorded nearly a third (29%) of the total cohort exhibiting some kind of cardiovascular reaction, such as a fast heart rate or other abnormal cardiac rhythm. The cohort included seven boys who subsequently developed myocarditis or pericarditis, and featured two hospitalisations, including one ICU admission.

The future: fear or faith?

For almost three years now, the world's attention has been fixated on Covid-19. The many moral claims about how we ought to respond to it have been based, all too often, on the flimsiest of real evidence mingled with a whole lot of propaganda. ‘The science’ has been presented as a settled matter, when really it has been fraught with controversy, disturbing ethical concerns and political motivations from the beginning.

What is more, all this was used to justify the temporary rollout of vaccine passports: an attempt to fundamentally reshape our world, subordinating our bodily autonomy and freedom to the whims of government.

In the present lull, it is more critical than ever that we do not grow complacent. Viral evolution could yet spell disaster if vaccinal antibodies increase susceptibility to infection from new variants, a risk known as ‘antibody dependent enhancement’.

If we yet face a vaccine-induced humanitarian crisis, will we answer in faith or in fear this time? Will we turn to God alone or back to the Government? And if the mark of the beast emerges in the near future, is the Church ready to reject it and to proclaim the Gospel instead, regardless of the cost?

GENETICALLY MODIFIED MRNA: A PANDORA'S BOX

Scientists thought that genetically modifying the mRNA in the Covid vaccines would be a safe way to make the vaccines effective. Instead, the mRNA may trigger the formation of misshapen proteins in the bodies of vaccine recipients – with a host of health complications.

One special type of misshapen protein called an ‘amyloid’ forms aggregate deposits in tissues and organs. A shocking study from Linköping University, Sweden, found the mRNA-induced spike protein is unmistakably an amyloid.

They observed that the spike protein forms “scary fibrils” which were able to disturb the usual blood clotting process, causing fibrous clots that resisted breakdown via blood plasma protein in the normal way.

Could this mechanism explain some of the fatal thrombotic adverse reactions to the Covid jabs?

Another misfolded protein called a ‘prion’ is capable of causing other proteins around it to also misfold, in a cascade effect. Prions can be toxic to the brain, killing neurons (nerve cells), leading to devastating and irreversible brain damage.

The mRNA-induced spike protein has already been shown to contain a prion-like domain, according to a peer-reviewed computational study.

The astounding story of the Bible College of Wales during World War 2

Rees Howells' God Challenges the Dictators: Doom of Axis Powers Predicted

By Mathew Backholer

By Faith Media

The inspiring life of prayer warrior Rees Howells, and his Bible College of Wales, powerfully impacted the Christian public.

Add the accounts of the College's staff and students praying day and night during World War 2, and you have an amazing story.

Howells wrote letters to Churchill

'God Challenges the Dictators' was the only book Rees Howells wrote in his lifetime, at the start of World War 2.

As a former student and staff member of the Bible College, Mathew Backholer has taken the complete text of that book and annotated it, setting it in the context of the rise of Hitler and Nazism. He includes letters which Howells wrote to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and many others.

According to the book jacket, "Copies of [the book] were sent to British government officials and prime ministers, and extracts were aired over occupied parts of Europe, while Hitler and leading Nazi officials were sent copies!" The book also contains photographs, press releases and newspaper articles, explaining the work of the College during the war years.

Rees Howells was a man who, alongside his wife, walked the walk of faith – first as a missionary in Africa and then in his beloved Wales. He began the Bible College of Wales with two shillings in his pocket.

Howells never made any appeals for money

When war broke out, the College stopped its normal activity. Staff and students committed themselves to coming together to pray three times a day, with their main prayer times from 7pm to midnight; they never missed a day.

They also cared for 1,000 Jewish refugee children

As God gave the conviction, other activities were added, including a school for missionary children, and caring for 1,000 Jewish refugee children. Howells's most remarkable achievement was that he never made any appeals for money. His guiding principle was to teach the lessons he had learnt early in his life – walking by faith and telling his needs only to his heavenly Father. He proved God in a remarkable way.

Mathew Backholer has written many books on revival, including a biography of Samuel Rees Howells, Rees Howells's son, who became principal of the College after his father's death. Some years ago, I had the opportunity to make a series of programmes on revival with the author. His passion is to see revival break out again in our nation, and for the principles that Rees Howells applied to his own life to become the norm for the Church of today.

Want to learn biblical Hebrew? Here's a good place to start

Hebrew Lessons for Beginners from the New Testament

By Rosamund Weissman

Fresh Olive Press

If you have ever dreamt of trying to learn Hebrew, this is the book for you. It is not intended for serious Bible scholars studying for theological exams; rather, it introduces Christians to the Hebrew language.

His source of vocabulary was the Old Testament

Rosamund Weissman has a Jewish background and came to faith in her Messiah while studying law at Nottingham University in 1976. When she was 18, she spent eight months in Israel studying Hebrew on a kibbutz. Her husband, Robert, has spent most of his life in Jewish missions as an evangelist, and has written some of the lessons in the book.

Rosamund longs for believers to deepen their understanding of the Hebraic background of the New Testament. She explains how the Hebrew language was revived through Eliezer Ben Yehuda (and others) when they landed back in the Land in 1881. Ben Yehuda's source of vocabulary was the Old Testament.

But how could he create words such as pencil and bicycle, which are not found in the Old Testament? You will need to read the book to find out how!

Lesson one describes the Hebrew letters and vowels. Lesson two tells you how to read Hebrew. The remaining lessons, all using Scripture as their reference point, help readers to understand topics such as the names of God, titles of Jesus, the Jewish calendar, the cross, the Holy Spirit and more.

"I defy you not to stop reading and bow down in worship"

Another reviewer wrote: "[This book] both informs the mind and warms the heart. Even believers of long standing will gain extra shades of meaning from the Scriptures otherwise hidden in translation... On page 29 you will read something astonishing, which can only be explained from the fact that the Bible is the divinely inspired Word of God down to the very letters the Holy Spirit employed. I defy you not to stop reading and bow down in worship.

Trust in God's care

Much of the talk about how to cope with current and impending worldwide upheavals tends to engender fear, worry and confusion.

None of that is of God. All believers are his children. Therefore we are his heirs and bona fide members of his household (Galatians 4:4-7).

Those who won't look after members of their household are worse than unbelievers or infidels (1 Timothy 5:8). Obviously, God is neither an unbeliever nor is he an infidel! So you can trust that he will care for you if you are a believer (Romans 10:9-10).

Besides, God has already made available to you everything you will ever need "for life and godliness." (2 Peter 1:2-3) They are "in heavenly places", so pray for the Holy Spirit to show you how to bring them into the natural.

A foot in both camps

Please don't use The Expose as a source again (Health Watch, Oct/Nov issue) until you have read the article about them on Wikipedia. They seem unreliable, to put it as kindly as I can.

Secondly, not all deaths after the jab will be deaths from the jab.

Thirdly, have a look at the Imperial College London study on lives saved by the jab, which was reported in The Economist on 9 July 2022, page 85. I regard them as a trustworthy source having taken The Economist for some years.

Finally, and this is my main point, by embracing a vaccine hesitant stance to the exclusion of other views as you do, you risk being distracted from your stated role of being a Christian newspaper, which is what the Lord called you to be. What has a view on the jab got to do with following Jesus? Please try and present counter arguments as well as the ones you believe in.

I don't know anything with certainty about Covid and the jab, not being a medic myself, but I do want to stay in fellowship with other Christian believers whatever view they take. Let's avoid getting into camps unnecessarily.

Therefore I believe that Charles is religious - but not born again!

Key to revival?

All over this nation churches are believing for salvation for the people of this nation.

Though let us be honest, it is not working!

Jesu told Nathaniel in John 1:51: "Most assuredly, I say to you, hereafter you shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man."

The Bible states there are three heavens:

- 1) The heaven we can see
- 2) Satan's rule
- 3) Highest heaven where God resides.

Seeing that our prayers have to go through the demonic heaven, obviously they will all get aborted by Satan if we are in rebellion. Daniel 10 explains this.

Read 1 Corinthians 11:2-16. Many denominations have a male leader with his head covered, yet Scripture tells us they are dishonouring Christ – look at their 'fruit'.

A lady needs God's protection

There are two systems working:

- 1) System of grace
- 2) System of government

Most only understand the system of grace.

King David sinned; afterwards he received forgiveness – that is grace. The Lord told him that the sword would never leave his house, he would lose his wives and the child would die – that is government.

God's grace can never override his government.

The practice of head covering is to do with God's government. Are the churches under God or not?

Read 1 Corinthians 11:10: "For this reason the woman ought to have a symbol of authority on her head, because of the angels." (NKJV)

Part of Isaiah 4:5-6 (KJV) says: "For upon all the glory shall be a defence."

Upon all the glory (a woman's hair) shall be a defence. A lady needs God's protection.

When a lady prays with her hair covered, she is making a statement to the good angels that she is willing to submit to God's governmental rule.

Satan is watching! Satan originally was the angel covering the glory of God as stated in Ezekiel 28:14 and 16 so he knows the importance of it.

Objections to the principle of head covering:

- 1) I do not need to do it – God sees my heart
- Then obey his Word!
- 2) This was only for the Corinthian Church.
- 3) My hair is my covering.
- Read 1 Corinthians 11:6, men.
- 4) My prayers get answered already.
- Miracles happen in the Spiritualist 'Church'.
- 5) It is old-fashioned.
- So are salvation, baptism and sin.
- 6) It is only a symbol.
- Baptism and Communion are symbols?

Whenever nationwide prayer is called, the leaders quote 2 Chronicles 7:14 but they never tell the people how to fulfil it.

The Church needs to get serious with God.

PROPHECIES ALERT

I'm seriously concerned about what I perceive to be an over-emphasis on prophetic messages in HEART, and in an apparently growing number of churches.

They surely need to be tested before appearing in print. The record of charismatic prophecies in recent decades – particularly concerning revival – is hardly commendable, as R T Kendall suggests in his new book.

I am proud to be a card-carrying charismatic myself, sold on the absolute necessity of the baptism in the Spirit for fruitful evangelism.

Promoting the building of storehouses is an example of how things can go wrong

But prophecies must be thoroughly grounded in Scripture. The gifts of the Spirit are for the edification of the Church, but they must always be in submission to the Bible's authority.

The growing trend of promoting the building of storehouses to see us through predicted lean times ahead is an example of how things can go wrong.

On balance, this is not supported by Scripture.

I know there is talk of a Joseph generation called to prepare for famine by stocking food, though the emphasis seems to be on looking after ourselves. When I first read these articles, we were on the eve of the Feast of Tabernacles, foreshadowing the last days and the coming of our Saviour; essentially a celebration of God's presence and provision for the ancient Israelites where they learnt to feed on daily manna. In the wilderness, the bread of heaven came down each day, and it was only with the Sabbath in mind that they were to collect enough 'groceries' for two days.

Jesus clearly taught us to pray: "Give us today our daily bread..."

He wanted us to learn to trust him for each day – "One day at a time, Lord Jesus", as the song goes. Persecution and hardship are no doubt on their way, but the call to discipleship is unchanged.

Faith alone, in Christ alone, must still be our watchword.

CREATION CORNER

by Geoff Chapman

For hundreds of years people have looked at the night sky and wondered whether there are any other civilisations out there.

“Surely we can’t be alone in all those billions of galaxies?” they wonder.

Yet the most powerful radio-telescopes have found nothing in 38 years! That’s how long the SETI (Search for Extra-Terrestrial Intelligence) programme has been scanning the heavens for non-random signals.

In science fiction films like ‘Star Wars’ and ‘Star Trek’ it’s always assumed that there are other intelligent beings out there, probably even more advanced than us. So why haven’t they been in touch? Maybe it’s because they simply aren’t there, and we really are alone!

The fact is that very special conditions make life on

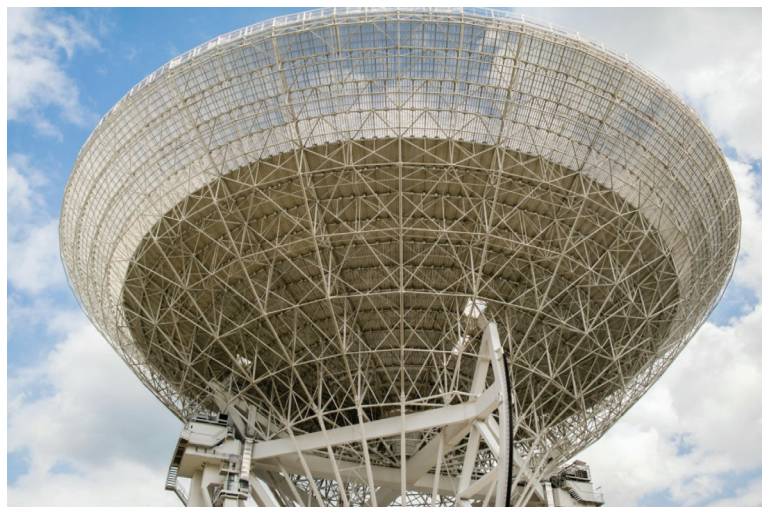

MORE EXCITING THAN ALIENS!

With no evidence of extra-terrestrial life, here’s a far more staggering truth earth possible — conditions which are not known to exist anywhere else in the entire universe! According to The Scientific American: “Certain fundamental constants of nature appear to be fine-tuned for life’s existence.”¹

So is this just a fluke or did some supreme intelligence, an all-powerful Creator, finely tune it for our benefit?

Popular TV scientist Professor Brian Cox has dismissed the idea that aliens

Powerful radio-telescopes haven’t found signs of extra-terrestrial life after 38 years exist, at least within our own galaxy. He said that, because the origin of life is “such a freak occurrence... there’s probably nothing else.”²

Brian Cox isn’t alone in his view. A headline on space.com read: “Five out of five researchers agree: Earth’s solar system is special.”³

Yet we are not alone. There is something even more exciting than aliens — the Creator of the universe visiting planet earth!

This happened not by a space ship or flying saucer, but by the birth of a tiny baby in a manger. Earth became the ‘visited planet’ when Jesus Christ was born 2,000 years ago. This is what the Bible says about him: “He was with God in the beginning. Through him all things were made; without him nothing was made that has been made.” (John 1: 2-3). Though it may be difficult to grasp, God became a human being “and made his dwelling among us.” (John 1: 14).

God could not have chosen a better way to prove his love for us than to become one of us. Jesus grew up as a perfect man, yet at the young age of 33 he was condemned to death and crucified, although the judge pronounced him “not guilty.”

Earth’s conditions aren’t known to exist anywhere else in the entire universe!

His death was unique. The Bible tells us that death is the result of sin entering God’s originally perfect creation. Jesus didn’t die for his own sins, but for ours! By admitting our need for forgiveness, and accepting Jesus’s death on our behalf, we can be reconciled to God and have a living relationship with him.

But there is more: history records that Jesus rose from the dead. So those who put their faith in him will also rise to eternal life.

Surely this amazing visitation is more exciting than aliens from outer space? To find out more about having a relationship with the Creator of the universe, please ask the person who gave you this paper, or contact the publisher.

BE A FRIEND OF HEART

Invitation from the founding editor:

HEART was started in 2007 in obedience to a vision for a Christian newspaper which would unite believers and give them a voice.

HEART Publications is run completely by faith with a very small, dedicated team of editor, part-time administrator and freelance designer. It is funded by Christians who take out advertisements and donate because they believe in this paper.

Printing and posting the papers cost thousands, and we need to be able to respond to requests for the paper in other areas, so would you pray about becoming a Friend of HEART?

Melanie Symonds

Partner with HEART’s ministry by becoming a Friend of HEART.

Friends donate £5 or more each month by standing order and receive a personal copy of HEART in the post each time it comes out.

FRIENDLY CHURCHES NEAR YOU

Over 1,000 UK churches receive free copies of this paper every two months. The ones on this page have also chosen to support HEART. Do visit them if you're nearby.

between the spring and autumn booster rollouts and the excess deaths surge. A similar phenomenon has been noted in other highly vaccinated countries.

Cardiologist Dr Aseem Malhotra, who once promoted the Covid vaccines on television, is now raising awareness of their dangers: "Until proven otherwise, it is likely that Covid mRNA vaccines played a significant or primary role in all unexplained heart attacks, strokes, cardiac arrhythmias and heart failure since 2021." (Source: The Daily Sceptic)

A recent Swiss study found elevated troponin levels in all vaccinated people, indicating that the Covid vaccines cause heart damage in 100 per cent of recipients, whether or not obvious illness ensues. (Source: The Daily Sceptic)

PFIZER VACCINE HOSPITALISES ONE IN 500 CHILD RECIPIENTS

A new study published by the Journal of the American Medical Association followed up thousands of children under five who had received a Pfizer jab. Findings indicate that one in 200 experienced ongoing injuries for weeks or months, while one in 500 ended up in hospital.

POST-LOCKDOWN RISE IN CHILD SPEECH DELAYS

There has been a dramatic increase in the number of children starting school needing language support, the BBC has found. Schools and therapists are coming under pressure as the number of pupils needing help has jumped 10% in the last year. The rise is thought to be due to children suffering a lack of social interaction during the lockdowns.
